

ITC Approval Pleases Steelworkers

By PAT THORNE
Herald Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Reaction was mixed Wednesday to the 3-2 vote by the U.S. International Trade Commission approving a complex system of quotas and tariffs designed to protect the domestic steel industry from the adverse effects of foreign imports.

The commission voted to recommend to President Reagan a five-year plan that would limit four types of steel imports to an average 17.7 percent share of the American market for three years. That allowed market share would increase to 19.5 percent in the fourth and fifth years.

Quotas would range from 6.4 percent to 31.8 percent on imported steel and strip, plate, structural and wire.

The recommendation included tariff increases on wire products and both tariffs and quotas on semi-finished steel. The overall impact of the plan would be to return allowed imports to approximately the levels of 1979-81.

Officials of Bethlehem Steel Corp. and the United Steelworkers of America, who petitioned the ITC for relief, in a television news conference from Pittsburgh with reporters in Washington, cautiously said they were "pleased" with the ITC recommendations.

Steelworkers union president Lynn Williams said "over 20,000 steelworker jobs would be restored and over 40,000 jobs would be restored in related industries" if the ITC plan were implemented.

Bethlehem president Donald Trautlein said the ITC remedy is a "good, appropriate step" but more needs to be done to provide the industry needed relief.

Both Trautlein and Williams called on President Reagan to strengthen the recommendations, especially those dealing with tariffs and the scope of products to be protected.

Tariffs are "not likely to reduce the level of imports," said Williams. Foreign governments will just increase their subsidies of their local steel industries to meet the tariffs and will continue to flood the U.S. markets, he explained.

He added the union and Bethlehem continue to be "very concerned" that tubular products, bars, wire rods and railway products were not included in the ITC action. Foreign exports of those products are "virtually certain" to increase and enter U.S. markets, he said.

The officials pledged to "work harder" to assure that Congress passes a pending bill to impose a

Mondale Choses Ferraro

NORTH OAKS, Minn. (UPI) — Democrat Walter Mondale, shattering 200 years of tradition in American politics, has picked Rep. Geraldine Ferraro to be the first woman vice presidential candidate of a major party, sources said today.

Ms. Ferraro, a 48-year-old congresswoman from New York, flew to Minnesota early today to join Mondale at a 1 p.m. EDT news conference, where he will formally announce his historic choice.

Sources said the former vice president made his decision Wednesday and informed Ms. Ferraro Wednesday evening.

If the Democratic National Convention meeting next week in San Francisco nominates Mondale and Ms. Ferraro as expected, it will be the first time in the country's history that a woman has been on the ticket of a major political party.

Democratic presidential rival Gary Hart said in a statement, "Geraldine Ferraro would make an excellent vice presidential nominee, and her selection is a significant advance for American women in politics."

The senator from Colorado, passed over himself in the running mate sweepstakes, added, however, that he will continue to seek the Democratic presidential nomination at the convention.

Jesse Jackson, who also sought the presidential nomination, called Mondale's decision a courageous choice. "It's a step in the right direction and as far as I'm concerned, a real victory for the rainbow coalition," he said on ABC.

President Reagan, who is running for re-election with Vice President George Bush, told reporters today, "I'm looking forward to running against the Democratic ticket." He declined to comment directly on Mondale's choice of Ms. Ferraro, saying, "They've made their decision."

Democratic leaders said Ms. Ferraro, representing a state with 36 electoral votes — the second largest electoral block after California — would be a boon to the party's ticket.

Ms. Ferraro, a Catholic of Italian heritage, has risen rapidly to prominence during her three terms in the House. As chairman of the Democratic Party's Platform Committee this year, she showed a flair for quick thinking in the spotlight and an ability to forge compromises that pleased not only Mondale but presidential candidates Gary Hart and Jesse Jackson as well.

The National Organization for Women and other feminists pushed to get Mondale to select Ms. Ferraro and threatened floor demonstrations at the convention if a woman was not on the ticket.

Noreen Connell, president of NOW's New York chapter, said, "It's absolutely mindboggling. This is a 200-year breakthrough."

Ferraro's husband, John Zaccaro, told CBS in New York, "I'll be supporting my wife. I don't know what to say at this point. It's really overwhelming ... we're very straightforward people and we're trying to do whatever we can to help the ticket."

New York Mayor Edward Koch said putting Ferraro on the ticket will further strengthen the Democrats' appeal to urban voters as well as women. "She is the urban spokesperson who will speak for all cities in America," he said.

Feminist leader Gloria Steinem said on CBS, "We would be campaigning for Mondale whether or not there was a woman vice president. Everybody made that very clear. But now the difference is that Mondale has true believers."

Tree Deaths Probe Subject

By VICKI BARKER
Herald Staff Writer

Orem detectives are trying to find out why trees along Interstate 15 are dying. They are questioning businessmen along the west side of I-15 in the vicinity of 900 North as part of the investigation.

Authorities suspect a deliberate attempt to kill trees that obscure visibility of businesses and advertising from northbound motorists on I-15.

Someone has illegally topped and ringed the trees so severely that many have died and more are dying slowly from resulting shock and sickness.

The vandalism began several years ago, detectives and state officials say.

"Some were topped out as many as five years ago," Orem Detective Ron Allen said.

The state shrugged it off at first, doubting a culprit could be found and proven guilty. But because the problem is continuing, state authorities are pushing local investigators to get to the root of it.

Late last month, the state attorney general's office requested an Orem City investigation after Utah Department of Transportation engineer for District Six, C.V. "Skip" Anderson, complained about the problem worsening.

"Somebody took tops out of 56 pine trees several years ago," said Anderson. "That was bad enough. Then this year we noticed some deciduous trees we had planted starting to die."

According to Anderson's files, in 1981 someone severely lopped off the tops of Austrian pines planted in 1975. In 1983 someone sawed rings around the bases of elm trees, also planted in 1975. The elms didn't die but got sick. Anderson noticed someone ringed the elm tree trunks again this past spring. It is only a matter of time before they die, he said.

"I was really irritated a couple of years ago, and I'm almost fighting mad now," Anderson said.

Damages are estimated about $20,000. Destruction of state property is a misdemeanor, but state law allows collection of awards triple the amount of actual damages.

Anderson said his branch office for UDOT began getting angry letters from people who assumed the state was responsible for killing the trees. Anderson wrote back that he was upset, too, and frustrated at the law's helplessness in preventing the destruction and proving who was doing it.

"It's kind of hard to prove without someone seeing them do it," Anderson said.

Earlier investigation by an enforcement officer led authorities to believe commercial interests motivated tampering with the trees.

"The only thing I can think of is (someone) wants to clear the view to his advertising and his business," Anderson said.

Council OKs Power Rate Hike

By JOSEPHINE ZIMMERMAN
Herald Staff Writer

Provo City Councilmen Wednesday night passed an ordinance amending the rates for electrical and service charges to bring in a 10 percent increase in revenues.

The matter had been postponed from the last City Council meeting because councilmen questioned the schedule of energy charges.

Bud Bonnett, Director of Power, told the council the rates were those established in a study of power usage conducted by Black and Veatch engineering firm.

Monthly rates for residential service will be as follows:

- Customer charge — $5.15 per month.

- Single phase — $5.50 per month.

Energy charge:

- First 500 kilowatt-hour per month — 3.28 per kwh.

- Next 300 kwh per month — 3.90 per kwh.

- All additional kwh per month — 3.145 per kwh.

The minimum monthly bill under the above rates shall be the customer charge of $5.15 per month for single phase customer, and $5.50 per month for multi-phase customer.

A production cost adjustment charge (or credit) shall be applied to all energy sold when it is necessary to reduce operating deficits (surpluses) caused by changes in the cost of power production.

Mayor to Present Library Options

By KAYLENE NELSEN
Herald Staff Writer

Provo's library will get a new home if the municipal council accepts one of the options Mayor James E. Ferguson will present this week.

The Provo Library Board heard an analysis Wednesday afternoon detailing the two major options the board has seriously considered. Dave Gardner, project analyst, told the group the mayor would be sending a report to the council Friday, starting the process to get the library into a new location.

Ferguson said Thursday the council would have to study the various location alternatives and financial options as well as solicit resident comment before the final decision is made.

The two basic options on location of the library are Academy Square and a new building west of the city center. Ferguson indicated a third option would also be given to the council for consideration but declined to detail it Thursday.

Gardner told the library board the Academy Square option, which includes a museum, a 950-seat concert hall and a library, could be the best choice if the council wants to go with the "package deal." However, if just a library facility is wanted and can be afforded, the new building would be the suggested alternative.

Ferguson confirmed the alternatives and stressed that he would be providing data and information to the council. "The decision of what to do will be up to them,"

The new library option would feature a 30,000 square-foot one-level building at a cost of $2,358,000, including the value of the land which the city already owns. Board chairman Royden Shurtz said the finished building, including books, shelves and equipment, would cost $1.77 million.

He also said the library would consider branch libraries around the city in the future when the library outgrows that new structure.

Financing the new building also dominated discussion Wednesday and several alternatives were considered. Gardner said a combination of financing would likely be the outcome. Some of the alternatives included leasing the building from the developer for a time before taking it over, having a bond election, and using fundraising options as a selling the present building.

Financing will be another decision for the city council to make although the library board will consider fundraising alternatives at the Aug. 8 meeting.

Beer War Brews In W. Germany

BONN, West Germany (UPI) — Germans' gusto for beer knows practically no bounds — except when foreigners try to cross the border peddling beer that was not brewed according to Germany's 468-year-old standards.

Those ancient, restrictive laws were challenged this week when the European Common Market filed a court complaint alleging West Germany's brewing regulations amount "to a restraint on trade."

The clash stems from a 1516 "Reinheit" or purity law forbidding West German brewers from making their beers with any ingredients other than hops, pure malt, yeast and water. Imported beers must meet the same standards.

Luxury Ship Can't Dock in England

LONDON (UPI) — Striking union dockworkers Thursday blocked the luxury transatlantic liner Queen Elizabeth II from sailing into a British port and forced it to divert to France in their bid to close every port in the nation.

The 66,850-ton liner carrying 1,500 passengers from New York was scheduled to dock at Southampton in southern England Friday, but the dockworkers forced the Cunard shipping line to divert the ship to Cherbourg in northern France.

OPEC May Set New Quota in Fall

VIENNA, Austria (UPI) — OPEC's 13 oil ministers, who just completed a two-day summit in Vienna, are expected to meet again in October to revise the cartel's production ceiling and set new national quotas, Kuwait's oil minister said Thursday.

There is "a very, very high probability that we'll meet in October," Sheikh Ali Khalifa Al Sabah said. "There will be a hell of a lot of haggling that might take us a week or 10 days."

But he said the 24-year-old organization will reach an agreement "just like we did always."

Thailand Arrests Two for Marxism

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Police have arrested a newspaper editor and a prominent university lecturer in a major crackdown on alleged communist influence in Bangkok, officials said today.

Dr. Preecha Piempongarn, a lecturer at Bangkok's Chulalongkorn University and the son of former deputy prime minister Sawet Piempongarn, was arrested at his home where police said they found a large amount of Marxist literature.

Police simultaneously raided the offices of the weekly political magazine Arthit Kledlab and arrested Chatcharin Chaiwat, editor of the daily newspaper Matuphum.

Rebels Derail El Salvador Train

No casualties were reported when a dynamite charge planted by leftist rebels derailed a train carrying cement to the capital city of San Salvador, El Salvador, Tuesday night.

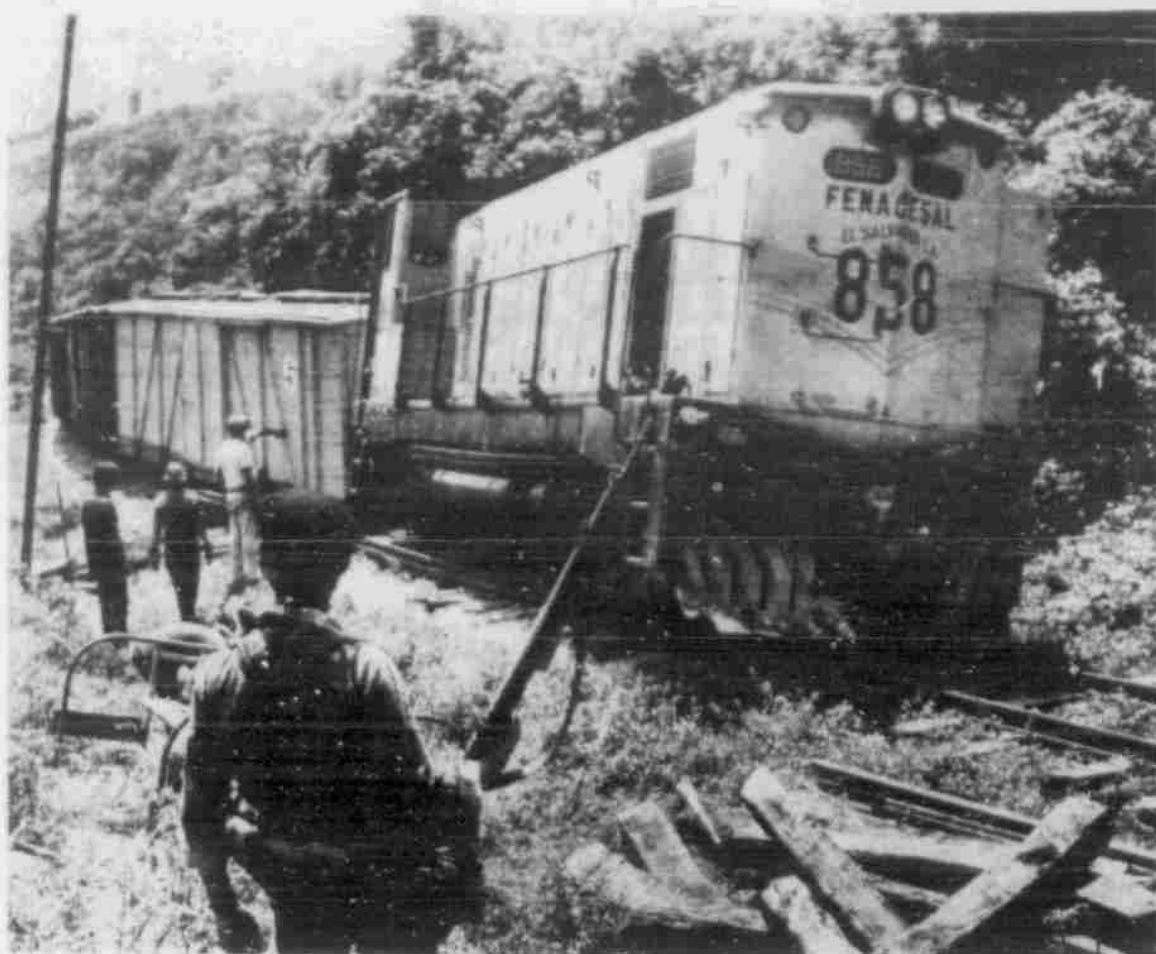

The explosion occurred near the town of San Jeronimo, 16 miles north of San Salvador, destroying the engine and several cars, company officials said Wednesday.

The officials said there were no reports of fighting between rebels and Treasury Police assigned to guard the train. No damage assessments were available.

During the third day of the campaign, guerrillas blocked the Pan American and Coastal Highways — the country's two main east-west routes — virtually paralyzing traffic and leaving thousands of travelers stranded.

In Nicaragua, opposition parties, scoffing at an increase in media access granted by the leftist government for presidential elections, say they will not participate unless a 2-year-old state of emergency is lifted.

Nicaragua's 50-member Council of State, an appointed legislative body dominated by the ruling Sandinista Front, announced it will increase media access time for parties contesting the country's Nov. 4 elections for a president, vice president and 90-member Constituent Assembly.

Iran, Iraq Pledge to Contain War

By United Press International

Iran and Iraq, which have vowed to wipe each other out in their nearly four-year-old war, have pledged to keep the conflict from spreading to other Persian Gulf countries.

Their statements to that effect coincided with Iraq's claim Wednesday that it struck a "large naval target" near the northeastern end of the Gulf close to the Iranian coast.

It was not immediately clear whether the vessel was a commercial oil tanker. More than 40 neutral ships have been attacked this year in the Iran-Iraq tanker war, an offshoot of the Gulf conflict.

Iraq has struck most of the ships in an attempt to cut off vital Iranian oil exports and Iran has hit vessels in retaliation.

Early today, Kuwait's defense minister concluded a deal to buy Soviet arms to defend Kuwait against an escalation of the Gulf War. The official news agency Tass said the minister, Sheik Salem Sabah al Sabah, then left Moscow to visit Soviet naval bases and watch military maneuvers.

Miner Credits Survival to Training

JUI FANG, Taiwan (UPI) — A coal miner trapped underground by a fire that killed 99 of his comrades said today he survived lethal fumes by tearing cloth from his pants, urinating on it and putting it over his mouth to breathe.

"I died once," Tsai Long Chi told reporters at Keelung Hospital. "I love my life, but I love my family even more."

Tsai was one of 22 miners pulled alive from the Mei-Shan coal mine Wednesday. Ninety-nine bodies have been recovered and three more are being sought in the second mine disaster in Taiwan in three weeks.

All of the nation's mines have been closed down for safety checks.

An explosion and fire at the mine Tuesday sent lethal carbon monoxide fumes drifting into the underground cavities where the miners were working.

By mid-morning today police said three miners were still missing in the 7,200-foot-deep mine.

Libyan Ignores Threats, Flies to Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Libya's foreign minister ignored a death threat and flew to Beirut today to meet President Amin Gemayel as fighting in north Lebanon between two pro-Syrian militia groups left at least 12 people dead and 40 others wounded.

Undeterred by a Shiite Moslem death threat and a recent rash of attacks against Libyan interests in Lebanon, Libyan Foreign Minister Abdel Salam Tureiki held a 90-minute meeting with Gemayel, government officials said.

Tureiki delivered a message from Col. Moammar Khadafi to Gemayel but its contents were not revealed.

Tureiki flew to Beirut a day after a Shiite Moslem extremist group claimed responsibility for bombing the Libyan Embassy in Beirut, government officials said. No one was injured but the building was destroyed.

Fun with Photography

By Bob Allen
Slow Films

In talking about films in the preceding columns we have talked mostly about print films. There are no very slow color print films and we have generally emphasized fast films. So why slow films?

Slow films are for photographic perfectionists. They are not particularly easy to use. The slowest film available for general use is Kodachrome 25 slide film with an ISO rating of 25/15°. Slide films typically have individual character. Kodachrome, for example, produces pictures that look different than those made with Agfachrome or Ektachrome. Aside from the tendency toward graininess in the faster films and slight differences in contrast most of the color print films are quite similar. Slide films are different.

Kodachrome 25 produces the most accurate color of all the slide films. It produces beautiful flesh tones. It has very fine grain and can produce very high resolution. While a film speed of 25 seems very slow to us now, for years the only color film available for general use was the original Kodachrome which had an ASA rating of 10!

Kodachrome 64. The ISO rating of this film is 64/19°. This film exaggerates color a little bit. No one color is emphasized more than another but colors are fully saturated and red is reproduced perhaps brighter than real life. Brown hair has a tendency to reproduce as black hair. People who try Kodachrome 64 usually like it a lot. Many trips to Europe and beyond are captured on Kodachrome 64.

Kodachrome films, both 25 and 64 require a very complex 19 step developing process. One advantage of this process is better permanence. We have some Kodachrome slides in the family made over 40 years ago which still look perfect. It is very expensive to build a Kodachrome processing lab. They require a lot of volume to be profitable. There are none in Utah or any adjacent state. California is the closest. With Kodachrome we always recommend processing by Kodak. That is the only place we send it.

Ektachrome films were created to provide a film that can be processed locally or even at home. They also include films with faster speed than Kodachrome, up to 1600 ISO. We will cover them in another column.

Teenager Claims An Escape From Her Tatooed Abductor

ABDUCTION — A 19-year-old Provo woman told police she was abducted Tuesday night, tied up and blindfolded by her kidnapper then got away Wednesday.

Orem detectives are continuing investigation into allegations by the youth that she was abducted from Macey's store in Carillon Square in Orem Tuesday evening. This afternoon she will undergo a polygraph test at the Orem police station. Detective Boyd Olsen said he believes the girl's story is "all fabrication."

"We've got our suspicions about the matter actually happening," he said. Olsen said he warned the girl police would file misdemeanor charges against her for filing a false report if her tale does not prove true.

Police today are awaiting a report back from Salt Lake County to see if there is any connection between the girl's report that she shot her abductor at about 10 a.m. Wednesday in Cottonwood Canyon, and a man recovering from a gunshot wound at Cottonwood Hospital who refused to say how he got shot. He told police he was shot around 10:30 a.m. in the canyon.

The girl said she left Tuesday evening in her boyfriend's pickup truck to go shopping. She didn't return.

She told roommates before she left that if they did not hear from her by 7 p.m. to come looking for her.

When she did not show up for a tennis game, her roommates called police.

The victim claimed an unknown man had been following her since Friday and had written notes and made phone calls to her.

"Later Tuesday night the missing woman telephoned her mother and told her a man had abducted and blindfolded her.

She said he had brown hair and tattoos on his arms and there were traffic sounds in the background like maybe she was calling from a roadside pay phone.

Orem police officers investigating the report said the woman reported she was not harmed by her abductor whom she said talked into letting her go.

A roommate of the youth said since last Friday a man — sometimes driving a beat up brown station wagon and other times a green station wagon — followed her.

"The night before she was abducted she came running upstairs in tears saying a man had followed her she seemed terrified," said the roommate.

Police are on the lookout statewide for a newer-model black Ford pickup truck carrying two men wanted in connection with the June 24 investigation into a reported rape in Sanpete Co. The vehicle was last seen June 28 headed north toward the Payson area. One of the occupants is described as a slender white male about six feet tall with shoulder-length hair and a mustache. The other, also Caucasian, has dark brown hair and a pockmarked complexion. Tips should be reported to the Sanpete County Sheriff's Office.

DEATH — Employees at a south Provo motel found a 32-year-old Pleasant Grove man hanging in his motel room Tuesday afternoon, a victim of an apparent suicide. Provo police said the man checked into the motel Monday.

INJURY ACCIDENT — The grandson of a woman living in southeast Orem injured one of his eyes Tuesday afternoon when the 14-year-old struck a piece of primer used to reload spent ammunition and an explosion lodged a piece in his eye. A cousin took the boy, David Montgomery, to American Fork Hospital for treatment. He was discharged Wednesday.

INDECENT EXPOSURE — Provo police arrested a 14-year-old youth for exposing himself in the stands at Timpview High School. Police report the suspect exposed himself from the bleachers while women ran around the track Tuesday.

PROPERTY DESTRUCTION — Provo police arrested a man at police headquarters Tuesday after he began kicking furniture around. Police Chief Swen Nielsen said the man had arrived apparently angry with the city. When police moved to arrest the man for destruction of city property he resisted arrest and after a small scuffle was jailed.

BURGLARY — A Provo resident told Provo investigators Tuesday that someone broke into his residence in northeast Provo and stole his television set valued at $300-$400.

AUTO BURGLARY — An Orem man reported someone stole a woman's purse and watch from her unlocked car while she visited early Wednesday morning at his trailer in southwest Orem. The small white purse, contents and watch were valued at $200.

* An Orem man reported $200 worth of tools and two shelves out of a toolbox stolen from the back of his pickup truck sometime Wednesday night. Children questioned by police said they had seen a suspicious van in the area that had driven by several times before stopping.

STOLEN VEHICLE — An Orem man on Wednesday reported a red metallic 1979 Honda Civic stolen from Sav-Mor Auto Clinic where the vehicle had been left for repair June 25. Employees at the business said they never saw nor worked on the vehicle, which the owner had left unlocked with the keys inside. The car was valued at $4,500.

* Orem police on Tuesday alerted police agencies nationwide of a truck and trailer believed stolen by a California man in May. The Orem owner said the suspect has not reported to him in the six weeks since leaving Orem May 5. The $42,000 rig was last seen in Modesto, Calif. The victim believes the driver also cashed a personal check made out to C&L Trucking Co. in the truck owner's name for $1,098.

The truck is a white 1979 Freightliner with green and blue stripes and smoked windows (license: 55898 Utah; 64631L Nev.), pulling a white 1973 Timp style trailer with a mural of the cartoon character Yosemite Sam (license number C15202 Utah). The truck cab has C&L Trucking in blue lettering.

* Orem police have also looking for a 1983 Honda Civic 2-door, reported stolen July 1. The vehicle is red with blue interior, "cense plates ZY5771.

STEEL: Imports Affected

15 percent quota on all steel imports.

The leading exporters of steel to the U.S. last year were Japan, Canada, South Korea and West Germany.

President Reagan may accept, reject or modify the ITC recommendations within 60 days of receiving them. The target deadline would be Sept. 24.

Administration officials have opposed quotas on grounds that action would heighten world trade tensions and drive up the price of steel.

ITC chair Paula Stern, who voted against the plan as well as the commission's finding last month that foreign imports had caused serious injury to the domestic industry, said it would not deal with the industry's important problems.

Stern said the industry should advance a "concrete plan" for its future adjustment and recovery before relief actions are appropriate. Without such a plan, a relief program centering on imports "becomes a sugar coating for stop-gap import relief."

Commissioner Susan Leibeler, who also opposed the plan, said any protection implemented by the president should be conditioned on a 20 percent pay cut by steelworkers. "Only with such a concession can American steel producers hope to be competitive at the end of the relief period," she stated.

The three commissioners who voted for the relief said it should be contingent on an industry plan for regaining its competitive status.

Commissioner Alfred Eckes said the program of tariffs and quotas "will enable the domestic steel industry to generate the much-needed cash flow to modernize existing steel production facilities and become more competitive."

Commissioner David B. Rohr, who also voted for the relief plan, said the ITC would "closely monitor" industry progress toward recovery. "If these reviews do not reveal meaningful efforts to adjust by all involved in the steel industry, the relief should be terminated," he declared.

Domestic steel companies lost $6 billion in 1982 and 1983, and some 90,000 steelworkers have lost their jobs. More than 170 steel facilities have closed in the last two years. The trade commission estimates there are 90 domestic steel producers employing 178,800 people nationwide.

Until January or Funding

Heritage Action Postponed

By KAYLENE NELSEN
Herald Staff Writer

Provo Planning Commission continued final plan approval for Heritage Mountain for the fourth time this year in action Wednesday night.

The resort developers requested a 60-day continuance but the commission voted unanimously to push the date to the January meeting although the item can come up sooner if the developers are prepared before then and give proper notification.

The commission has requested that Heritage Mountain have Forest Service permits in hand before the final plan approval is given. The Forest Service, however, is waiting for proof of financial backing before activating the permits.

Steve Bennett of Heritage Mountain said he was pleased the commission granted the continuance but declined to comment on the status of the financial end of the operation.

Resort officials first requested final plan approval in March but withdrew the request. In April the matter was continued twice and then continued for another 60 days in May.

The project officials are trying to put together $18 million for the "minimum operable unit" at the east-Provo resort.

In other action, the commission passed a request for annexation of property located at approximately 3225 N. Canyon Rd. They also approved rezoning of property at 1101 N. 500 W. from general commercial to professional office where Heritage Health Care Corp. plans to build a 30-35 bed psychiatric health care convalescent center.

Nearly two dozen Franklin Neighborhood residents turned out to oppose the rezoning of property at 414 S. 800 W. from a two-family residential to a commercial manufacturing. The commission said the change would be spot-zoning, something the commission opposes and the request was denied.

The commission passed zoning ordinance amendments regarding temporary uses and site plan review committee appointments but continued amending an ordinance regarding accessory dwelling units.

All items now go before the municipal council July 31 for final approval or further discussion.

Among Ash, Rubble of Bowling Alley Are Memories of Faithful Lane Goers

By VICKI BARKER
Herald Staff Writer

SPRINGVILLE — The president of the local women's bowling league association in Springville, the oldest league in Utah County, says she feels terrible about the destruction of Art City Lanes, and she knows other bowlers do too.

They started calling her at 6:30 a.m. Wednesday wondering what they're going to do now. It was the city's only bowling facility.

"They've felt bad about it," said Dottie Pererro. "I just feel sick. We never wanted our bowling alley to go."

"I went at three in the morning to watch my third home burn down," she said.

Mrs. Pererro helped her husband run the business ten years before it changed hands in 1972. She hadn't known a thing about bowling but developed a passion for the sport and imparted that to others who have kept her leader of the Springville Women's Bowling Association 20 years.

The past three years she has been coordinating activities of three women's leagues comprised of about 120 bowlers. There was also a man's league, a mixed league, and the Utah County Travel League that regularly used the facility. The majority of patrons were Mrs. Pererro's "ladies," the association president said.

"I hate to see all these women have to get separated where we're not all together bowling," she said.

Art City Lanes was one of eight bowling facilities in the county that Mrs. Pererro said she's bowled at, and she favored Springville's above the rest because "it was just home."

"I enjoyed the people and the environment. We all got gripey about dirty lanes and greasy balls, but there was the same problem at other lanes in the county," she said.

Mrs. Pererro admitted the building was not in the best possible shape. "It needed some things done. Since we left the business in 1972, it had deteriorated quite a bit. There's been a few instances where we (league players) smelled smoke — we were more or less our own fire alarms — but nothing came of it."

The building may have needed upgrading, but no other business in Springville rivaled it as a spot for socializing, according to Pererro and a former employee, Joann DeHaas.

"It's the early morning coffee drinkers who will be the ones that'll be lost because there's hardly any place else to go in town," DeHaas said.

DeHaas watched for about 90 minutes while the building burned at 1 a.m. Wednesday and said she felt a deep sadness. She estimated about 150-200 people gathered in the dark to watch the flames, and she saw several of the business's employees crying.

"Some were really dedicated," she said. DeHaas worked the snack bar in 1975-76. Although no longer bowling, she had been part of the league about 15 years.

DeHaas said she had heard people say in the past that the building was a fire hazard.

"The lanes were old and broke down a bit and were troublesome to bowl on," she added. Nevertheless, there were dedicated bowlers. DeHaas doubts their enthusiasm will hold up if they have to travel out of town to bowl.

Civic Leader Algie Ballif Dies

Algie Eggertsen Ballif, 88, well-known Provo leader in state and local affairs, died Wednesday July 11, 1984 of natural causes.

She was born May 3, 1896 in Provo, a daughter of Lars E. and Ane Grethe Nielsen Eggertsen. She married George S. Ballif on Dec. 24, 1920 in the Salt Lake LDS Temple, and he died Oct. 31, 1977. In 1959 she was elected to the Utah Legislature, serving one term. She served on the President's Commission on the Status of Women under President John F. Kennedy and President Lyndon B. Johnson, and was also on the White House Commission on Health Facilities.

In 1965 she was appointed by Gov. Calvin Rampton to the Public Welfare Commission as head of the Family Services Division, serving into the mid 1970s.

A lifelong resident of Provo, Mrs. Ballif attended schools in Provo and was graduated from Brigham Young University, where she was active in dramatics and debating. She was editor of the Banyan and student body secretary.

She taught at Ricks College in Rexburg, Idaho, at American Fork High School and Brigham Young University, and taught to help her husband through law school at Harvard University and the University of California.

In LDS Church work she was active the Primary, Sunday School, MIA, and Relief Society, having served as a teacher and board member in all stake organizations of these auxiliaries.

She was president of BYU Women in 1925-26, member of the BYU Alumni Board, member of Friends of BYU Library, and member and vice president of the BYU Emeritus Club.

In the 1940's she served on the Provo City Planning Board, and was also on the Utah County Committee for the American Red Cross, and the March of Dimes.

She was an officer of the PTA and was elected to five consecutive terms on the Provo School Board, serving 23 years, one term as board president. She was also a school board member on the Advisory Council of the Utah Education Association (UEA). Active in political affairs, she was vice-chairman of the Democratic Party in Utah County and the state.

Algie Ballif

She organized the Alice Louise Reynolds Forum in the early 1970s.

Her club activities included membership in the Alice Louise Reynolds Club, Utah Sorosis, Utah Federation of Women's Clubs, League of Women Voters, Utah Historical Society, Western History Club, Provo Women's Council, Legislative Council and American Association of University Women.

Surviving are four children: George E. Ballif and Algene B. Marcus, both of Provo; Mrs. D.C. (Joan B.) Jensen of LaCanada, Calif.; and Mrs. Chase N. (Greth B.) Peterson of Salt Lake City; nine grandchildren; three great-grandchildren; one brother and three sisters: Thelma E. Weight of Provo; Anna Marie Decker of Townsend, Utah; Esther E. Peterson of Washington D.C. and Mark E. Eggertsen of Salt Lake City. A brother Luther E. Eggertsen preceded her in death.

Funeral will be Saturday at 11 a.m. at the Berg Mortuary chapel, Provo. Friends may call at the mortuary Friday from 6 to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 10 to 10:50 a.m. Burial will be in the Provo City Cemetery.

The family suggests contributions to the BYU Library or Dance Department.

Utah Governor Tells What Mondale Really Said to Him

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — News accounts of a conversation presidential candidate Walter Mondale had with Gov. Scott Matheson about a post in a Mondale administration have been misinterpreted, Matheson says.

A news report Wednesday suggested Mondale could have violated federal election laws if he offered Matheson a job in his administration in exchange for the governor's support at next week's Democratic National Convention.

Matheson held a news conference later Wednesday to reiterate the details of a conversation he had with Mondale Sunday, in which they discussed the possibility of a job for Matheson in a Mondale administration.

The governor initially commented on the potential offer during a casual luncheon with news reporters in Salt Lake City on Monday.

He said Mondale told him if he were elected president, he would be interested in bringing Matheson back to Washington as part of his administration. Matheson said no specific job was discussed, but he would be most interested in interior secretary.

Mondale aides said Tuesday no job offer had been discussed with Matheson and that the former vice president had offered nobody a specific job in his administration if Mondale is elected.

Matheson said Mondale did nothing that would violate laws and the report stemmed from a misunderstanding of what he said Monday.

"I received a telephone call from the former vice president Sunday and he asked me for my support at the convention. I told him I would be happy to vote for him on the first ballot and do whatever I could to assist him at the convention."

Matheson said Mondale told him he believed he had 2,200 delegates, give or take about 40,

Twins Have More Surgery

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — Doctors at the University of Utah Medical Center plan another surgery today in an series of preparatory steps to separate siamese twin girls, who are joined at the head.

The 4-month-old infants, Patricia and Ashley, whose last name has not been disclosed to ensure the family's privacy, have undergone three operations so far in preparation for their separation.

John Dwan, Medical Center spokesman, said surgeons do not intend to complete the separation today. That surgery will be undertaken in the next couple of weeks, depending on how well the twins recuperate from the latest surgery. The three surgeries each have been several weeks apart. Surgeons have cut and tied off blood vessels shared by the two and placed separating sheets between lobes of the girls' brains.

They also have prepared skin flaps to cover the babies' heads when they are separated and taken other measures that will aid in reconstructive surgery.

Dwan said doctors have yet to encounter shared brain tissue, but believe they will encounter it before the final separation.

The girls were born in California to former Utah residents. Their father is in the military and assigned to a California base.

The parents brought the babies to Utah for separation because of the success medical center physicians achieved in separating Lisa and Elisa Hansen, twins who were similarly joined at the skull.

The Hansen children were separated in 1979. They are now six years old and attending school in Utah, although both are somewhat disabled.

The Hansen girls were joined at the tops of their heads facing the same direction. The current siamese twins also are joined at the tops of their heads, but face opposite directions.

Jury Finds Man Guilty of Abuse

BRIGHAM CITY, Utah (UPI) — A jury has found a man guilty of sodomy with a 7-year-old boy, but found him innocent of four other sodomy and sexual abuse charges.

The jury deliberated for about four hours Wednesday before finding David Wayne Fulton of Brigham City guilty of one count of a first-degree felony of sodomy upon a child.

He was found innocent of three charges of forcible sexual abuse and one count of sodomy upon a child. Judge Ormer Call set sentencing for Aug. 6.

Webb to Stand Trial in Shooting

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — An Ogden judge has ruled there is enough evidence to try a 58-year-old Weber County man in the June 23 shooting death of his brother-in-law.

Mason Webb is accused of second-degree murder in the slaying of John Beeman. The shooting occurred at the Weber County home of Beeman's mother.

Slater testified Webb appeared intoxicated after the shooting but was cooperative. Judge Robert Phillips ordered Webb to appear in district court July 18 for arraignment.

Man Charged In Car Fatality

OGDEN, Utah (UPI) — A man involved in a fatal head-on collision in Ogden Canyon was arraigned on a third-degree felony count of auto homicide.

Arraigned Wednesday was Freddie Lopez, 36, Ogden. He was involved in crash that killed Ron Jenkins, 50, Plain City. Jenkins' wife, Joyce, 43, received minor injuries in the crash.

The charges say Lopez's blood alcohol level was .19 percent — more than twice the legal limit — when the 4:30 p.m. accident occurred June 17.

Three Idaho Men Face Extradition

AMERICAN FALLS, Idaho (UPI) — Three men arrested by Power County Sheriff's deputies were arraigned on auto theft charges, and were to face possible extradition to Arizona on charges of murdering a Utah man, police said.

Sheriff Howard Sprague said Frederick Brigham, 24, Pocatello; Adam Aldredge, Pocatello; and Larry Gene Redmond, Salt Lake City, both about 20, were arraigned Wednesday.

They are accused of first-degree murder and theft.

Proposed State Prison Renovation Expensive

DRAPER, Utah (UPI) — The Utah State prison needs major renovation costing from $55 million and $65 million because dangerous prisoners are not being properly housed, prison officials say.

Warden Kenneth Shulsen said the 61 cells now in the maximum security building are inadequate for maximum security prisoners.

"Two months ago, we ran our own classification check. At the very least, we have 150 inmates who should, because of their behavior, be in maximum security, at the tops, 200 inmates," he said. "We have inmates throughout our system who are maximum security risks who aren't housed in maximum security."

Prison Study Committee members were told by a consultant last month that rebuilding the state's only prison could cost an estimated $58 million. But, as committee members questioned consultants recently, they found the $58 million figure does not include architects' fees, utility hookups and other costs.

Prestigious Hotel Coming To Triad Center in Salt Lake

SALT LAKE CITY (UPI) — A 30-story-high, 600-room Hyatt Regency Hotel will be going up on the northeast corner of the Triad Center in downtown Salt Lake City, hotel and Triad executives say.

Essam Khashoggi, chairman of the Triad America Corp., was in Salt Lake City Wednesday with a Hyatt Regency executive to announce construction plans for the new hotel.

"We anticipate ground breaking before end of the year," Khashoggi said. "We anticipate that the hotel will be opened before the final quarter of 1986 or first quarter of 1987."

Triad executives said they had negotiated for two years.

Scout's Gift to Kaysville Spray Painted by Vandals

KAYSVILLE, Utah (UPI) — A $100 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest of vandals who damaged a welcome sign brought to the city through the efforts of a local youth.

Twelve-year-old Grant Murray said he decided to fulfill his Eagle Scout requirements by providing Kaysville with a welcome sign.

"I saw the nice signs other cities have and decided it would make a good Eagle Scout project to put one up in Kaysville," he said.

The Murray boy said he could have painted bleachers at a baseball park but liked the idea of doing "something more worthwhile."

Kaysville resident Dana Wright, of a local flower shop called The Dandelion Cottage, is offering a $100 reward for any information that would lead to the arrest of the vandals who spray painted the back of the Kaysville welcome sign.

Indians Pulled Over In Interstate Flame Run

BLYTHE, Calif. (UPI) — American Indians staging their own Olympic relay to Los Angeles say they will continue their run despite warnings from law officers that they will stop them.

The Oklahoma-to-Los Angeles relay by dozens of Indians was halted early Wednesday by the California Highway Patrol because the group did not have the required pedestrian permit.

A CHP officer stopped the lone runner on Interstate 10 at 4 a.m. just west of Blythe and advised him that the permit from the California Department of Transportation was needed for such a run.

The runner, along with a support vehicle containing other runners, returned to Blythe. The CHP said several of the Indians had asked permission for such a run on Tuesday but apparently went ahead with the relay without permission. There were no arrests.

The group then met with CalTrans officials, who denied their permit request late Wednesday.

"We don't allow any pedestrian traffic along interstate highways," said Sam Kemp, CalTrans' district permit engineer. "It is not permitted by departmental policies and rules."

Indian spokesman David Hill, who said he was a member of the Choctaw Tribe from Oklahoma City, called the decision "racist."

"All we have is ourselves and we haven't caused trouble and we have had good feelings all along the way," Hill said. "If anyone should have the right to walk along the freeway, it should be the American Indian."

He vowed that a runner would leave Blythe on Interstate 10 today.

"If we see them, we'll take an appropriate enforcement action," said CHP Lt. Ray Rogers. "But there is no legal requirement that we arrest."

The run, known as the Great Jim Thorpe Longest Spiritual Run, began on June 18 in Lawton, Okla., and was scheduled to end in Los Angeles July 19, nine days before the start of the Olympics.

Meanwhile, in Adin, Calif., residents gave a down-home welcome to runners bringing the Olympic torch to the 1984 Summer Games in Los Angeles.

The Adin Chamber of Commerce sponsored a beef barbecue and a softball game to celebrate the arrival of the runners Wednesday night. A band played bluegrass music at the barbecue.

Adin, a mountain town of about 500 people in a cattle ranching area of northeastern California, was the first-night stopping point for the runners in California. The torch entered the state from Oregon shortly after noon Wednesday.

Snyder Triples, But Japanese Top Americans

DENVER (UPI) — Motoya Yukawa hit a two-run homer and Kazuaki Ueda added a solo shot Wednesday night to lead the Japanese Olympic Team to a 7-3 victory over the U.S. Olympic Team.

Yukawa broke a 3-3 tie with his homer in the sixth to make it 5-3. Taisuke Kawasaki added a two-run single in the seventh to seal the victory.

The United States took a 3-1 lead in the fourth. Mark McGwire doubled and scored on a triple by Cory Snyder. Snyder scored on a single by John Marzano. Ueda made it 3-2 with his homer in the bottom of the fourth.

Pitcher Mitsukuni Takeda was the winner for Japan. Drew Hall was the loser for the U.S. squad, which fell to 17-3-1 in its pre-Olympic tour.

Jan Stephenson is seeking her first LPGA win since she won the U.S. Women's Open a year ago.

Stephenson Is Hoping History Repeats Itself

By FREDERICK WATERMAN
UPI Sports Writer

PEABODY, Mass. (UPI) — Defending champion Jan Stephenson, winless since her victory in the 1983 U.S. Women's Open, says she is "desperate" to win this year's championship, which starts today at Salem Country Club.

"I'm desperate to win," said Stephenson, who admits that her commercial success due to last year's Open win has cut her practice time and affected her play.

Stephenson, fourth in earnings last year but currently 17th, said she is playing poorly and lacks confidence on the greens.

"I'm too tentative now. To be a good putter you have to be aggressive, and I don't have the confidence. I'm worried about three-putting," she said in an interview Wednesday.

The Donald Ross-designed Salem course, a par-72, 6,285-yard layout, has undulating greens which Stephenson says may hide her putting problems.

"You have to be a little defensive here, these greens are tricky," she said on the eve of the $225,000 tournament, who offers a $38,000 top prize.

The longer hitters off the tee, specifically Patty Sheehan, number one on the money list with $177,752, and two-time Open champion JoAnne Carner, must be favored, according to Stephenson.

"The long hitters have the advantage, because here that extra 15 yards will get you over the rises and add another 25 yards. Otherwise you have uphill lies," said Stephenson. "Patty Sheehan is obviously the favorite."

Because of winning the 1983 LPGA championship, Sheehan says the majors hold a special interest for her.

"Ever since I won, the majors have had a special significance for me and hold a special meaning. And I believe I can handle the pressure I put on myself to win," she said.

The Women's Open was held on the Salem course in 1954 and won by Babe Didrikson Zaharias. This year's tournament is the 39th Open, and the 32nd run by USGA.

Sheehan called it, "One of the finest golf courses for the Open I've seen in a long time. Whoever wins here will earn it."

Carner said she appreciates the demands of the course.

"You have to hit every club in the bag, and I like it because you can keep a full swing and go at it all the time. Your whole game has to be sound for you to win the this Open," she said.

Carner, an aggressive player with both distance off the tees and the ability to hit finesse shots, said Salem is "a typical Donald Ross course."

"The driving is not severe, you don't have any line drives. You can see where everything flows, and you have to play every club," she said.

"But if you miss hit you are in trouble otherwise you can go after the course and play aggressively."

She said about the greens, "The short putts will be difficult because of the rolls and slopes of the greens, but they are putting true."

Allen Expounds 'Old' Style

By DAVID MOFFIT
UPI Sports Writer

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — George Allen and Jim Mora are taking a similar approach to Sunday's second annual U.S. Football League championship game.

Allen, coach and chairman of the board of the Arizona Wranglers, and Mora, coach of the favored Philadelphia Stars, both said Wednesday they are approaching Sunday's USFL finale like it was just another game.

"I'm trying to stay on the same schedule we had in Arizona," said Allen. "We're going to practice under the lights. That's what we had to do at Arizona for the last two months because of the heat."

"I suppose it would have been nice to have had an extra week to prepare (like the NFL teams have for their Super Bowl), but I don't know that it really matters," said Mora. "The way it has turned out, our (practice) schedule is the same as it was for all our Sunday games."

The Stars, who advanced to the championship with playoff victories over New Jersey and Birmingham after a 16-2 regular season, and the Wranglers, winners over Houston and Los Angeles after going 10-8, both arrived in Tampa Tuesday evening and got in their first workouts here Wednesday.

"I think it was a plus to have all that heat because the last half of the season we've been very strong," said Allen. "With an older club, we out-conditioned some of the younger clubs. We won a couple of games in the fourth quarter because of our conditioning."

"I'm still doing things the way I did years ago. It may be a little old fashioned, but this team has worked very hard and long and they've had a good attitude."

Philadelphia has beaten the Wranglers all three times they have met during the two years of the USFL. Last year, when the Wranglers were the Chicago Blitz, the Stars came from a 24-7 deficit with 21 points in the fourth quarter to win 31-24 in regular season play and scored 24 fourth-quarter points in a playoff game enroute to a 44-38 overtime victory.

This year, the Stars, down 21-6 at the half, rallied to beat the Wranglers, 22-21, without the services of Philadelphia running ace Kelvin Bryant who missed that game because of an injury.

"The Wranglers (on a six-game winning streak) have played very well of late and we can't afford to let them get an early lead on us again," said Mora. "We were lucky to win that first game (this past season) and I hope we don't get behind again because I don't know if we could come back again."

"We match up well against Philadelphia," said Allen. "They play sound football, offensively and defensively. They don't make too many mistakes and try to capitalize on other people's mistakes."

"Of course, that's been my whole career," said Allen. "Our teams are opportunistic and we very seldom beat ourselves. There are going to be mistakes in every game. But the team (Sunday) that makes the fewest critical mistakes will most likely win."

"That's what they have done when they have beaten us each time."

Sunday's contest will feature the passing of Philadelphia's Chuck Fusina against Arizona's Greg Landry and the running of Bryant against Kevin Long and Tim Spencer of Arizona.

Sports Briefs

Noll Thinks

Terry Finished

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Pittsburgh Steelers Coach Chuck Noll came to his pre-training camp news conference prepared not only to bury Terry Bradshaw's career but also to praise it.

After stating unequivocally Wednesday that he considers Bradshaw retired even if the injured quarterback does not, Noll took a few moments to eulogize Bradshaw's brilliant 14-year tenure with the Steelers.

"Terry was a great talent — make no mistake about that. And, whenever you lose a great talent, it's a setback. No doubt about it," Noll said, after joking with reporters about how dull it would be without Bradshaw to "pull your chain."

"We make light about a lot of things," Noll added. "But there's no doubt about what he has done and what he's contributed to this football team. Obviously, we missed him last year. The thought of the possibility of his coming back was something a lot of people held."

"Going into this camp and knowing that he's not going to be back is something we'll all have to face."

Utah Amateur Play Begins

EDEN, Utah (UPI) — Kurt Bosen shot 35s on the front and back nine for a 2-under-par 70 to lead the qualifying round of the Utah State Amateur golf tournament.

Bosen led a field of 93 golfers Wednesday seeking to be one of the 31 golfers plus the defending champion who will qualify for match play following today's second qualifying round.

The 32 golfers will begin match play Saturday with the final match set for Sunday.

Grid Powers Reject Deal

CHICAGO (UPI) — The Big Ten and Pac-10 have decided against joining the nation's other football powers in the College Football Association and will negotiate a network television deal on their own, conference officials said.

The announcement Wednesday came one day after Division I-A schools rejected an NCAA television plan designed to replace a package ruled in violation of antitrust laws by the U.S. Supreme Court. The Big Ten and Pac-10 supported the NCAA proposal while most of the 63 members of the CFA opposed it.

"There are irreconcilable differences of philosophy between us (and the CFA), even after giving full consideration to the shared economic benefits," Big Ten commissioner Wayne Duke said after meeting with Pac-10 executive director Tom Hansen.

"We believe our two conferences in a joint venture gives us enough strength to go ahead. Combined, we already saturate almost 40 percent of the television market."

The CFA includes such conference powers as Alabama, Georgia, Nebraska, Texas and Oklahoma as well as a major independent like Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Penn State.

CFA leaders had hoped the Big Ten and Pac-10 would join by today's deadline for new members. But Duke ruled out a coalition with the CFA, charging it had sabotaged the NCAA by working against the alternative television plan.

Jan Stenerud Won't Retire

GREEN BAY, Wis. (UPI) — Jan Stenerud doesn't know if he'll continue as the Green Bay Packers' kicker, but he says he's almost positive he won't retire from the game.

In an interview with the Green Bay News-Chronicle published today, the 41-year-old kicker said he is uncertain where he will be when the Packers open their training camp in eight days.

"I'm not 100 percent, but I've almost made up my mind retirement isn't going to be for me," he said from his Overland Park, Kan., home.

Stenerud is not certain he wants to return to the Packers because Coach Forrest Gregg will not guarantee him a job as the team's starting kicker. If he reports, Stenerud would have to beat out Eddie Garcia, 25.

"I'm curious what will happen," Stenerud said. "But I'm not letting it bother me a lot."

The situation is nearly a replay of 1980, when Stenerud was let go in favor of a younger kicker by the Kansas City Chiefs.

The 'Babe' Outclassed Them All at Olympics

Editor's Note: As part of the Daily Herald's salute to the 1984 Summer Games at Los Angeles, this is the first of several articles it will publish between now and July 28th or when the opening ceremonies begin.

Mildred "Babe" Didrickson excelled in every phase of fun and games and when asked if there was any game that didn't interest her, she replied simply, "Dolls."

She mastered basketball, baseball, football, golf, bowling, just about every track and field event and probably was the greatest woman athlete of all.

The Texas tomboy's performance in the 1932 Olympic Games at Los Angeles best illustrated how far ahead of her time she was, report researchers for Eastman Kodak Company.

Women were limited to only three events in the '32 Games and Didrickson had some difficulty deciding which to enter. When she settled on her three choices, she set Olympic and world records in the 80-meter hurdles, javelin and the high jump.

She used a then radical, head-first high jumping style that confounded the judges. They were unable to rule it illegal (because there was nothing in the books that said it was), but they were so confused they disapproved and placed her second to Jean Shiley.

She was just 18-years old then.

Seven years later, the AAU and Olympic officials admitted there was nothing wrong with head-first jumping but by then Babe had moved on to other athletic fields.

Had there been a decathlon for women in '32, she probably would have won that, too.

GREAT OLYMPIC MOMENTS IN TRACK & FIELD

One of a series from Kodak, official photographer, consultant to the U.S. Track & Field Team.

MILDRED "BABE" DIDRICKSON (1914-1956) was only 18 when she set world records in the 80-meter hurdles and the javelin. She apparently tied for another gold in the high jump but officials disapproved her radical style and placed her second.

She was a victim of the rules that limited her to 3 events in the '32 games.

In the Olympic trials, Babe won the long jump, shot put, javelin, hurdles and baseball throw, tied for first in the high jump and was fourth in the discus.

Asked if any game did not interest her, she replied, "Dolls."

Babe's head-first high jumping style wasn't acceptable until 1939, long after she moved on to other sports.

She was the singular member of the team representing the Dallas insurance company for which she worked and she won the long jump, javelin and shot put, hurdles and baseball throw. She tied for first in the high jump, was fourth in the discus and the 100-meter dash was the only event in which she did not score a point.

It must have been a terrible disappointment.

She had first gained attention as a school girl when she led the Dallas Cyclones to three straight national AAU women's basketball championships. She later played (against men) football and baseball — she hit five home runs in one game — and won bowling and golf amateur and professional championships. After winning 17 amateur gold tournaments in a row, she turned pro and helped establish the Ladies PGA. She was the leading money winner four years in a row.

Shortly before her death in 1956, she won her last tournament even though her lean body was ravaged by cancer.

Will another Didrickson emerge from the 1984 Olympic Summer Games?

U.S. athletes will answer that question at the 1984 Olympic Games beginning July 28th in Los Angeles.

Gymnastics Trend

Thursday, July 12, 1984 THE HERALD, Provo, Utah, — Page 7

Let's Recapture The Beauty

By DEBBIE HILL
Herald Correspondent

United States women began participating in gymnastics around 1855. By 1928 female teams were competing at the Olympic Games in Amsterdam.

Initially, women's and men's gymnastics were not that much different. Emphasis was on strength, poise, and rigidly held positions. In the past 35 years however, the sport has undergone great change, with the emphasis more on flowing artistic and acrobatic movements done with effortless grace.

This development, for the most part, took place in Europe and went largely unnoticed in the United States until the 1964 Olympic Games in Tokyo, when millions of American girls were suddenly exposed to gymnastics via television.

As an ever increasing number of women began participating in sports, gymnastics rode the wave to popularity. Between 1971 and 1976, the number of participants grew some 460 percent.

As the sport has undergone change, so has the body type of the successful gymnast; from the bulky, masculine physique of old to the flexible, petite body of the modern gymnast.

Today's gymnasts are significantly shorter and lighter than the general female population. They have relatively broad shoulders and a narrow pelvis. Also they are among the leanest of all female athletes. On the average, a 15-year-old gymnast has between eight to 15 percent body fat, compared to a 15-year old in the general population at 25.3 percent.

In addition to the hours spent on developing strength, flexibility, and timing, the gymnast of today must possess balance and coordination which are inborn traits according to the latest studies.

All of these traits are not necessary for participation in gymnastics, but they are helpful in the performance of the various events in the sport.

Along with the change in the actual physique of the gymnast there has also been a change in the skill level. In the 1964, 1968 and '72 Olympics, emphasis was on flexibility and supple, feminine movements. Since Nadia and the 1976 Olympics, the emphasis has been on aggression, power and triple risk skills. With this latest trend it is my opinion that a lot of the beauty has been sacrificed for the so called big tricks. Because of the high risk factor, there has been some talk about going back, and trying to recapture some of the beauty. I personally hope it isn't just talk.

Stardom Awaits 'Surfer' Vidmar

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Blond, handsome and well-built — he's an authentic California surfer boy — as well as intelligent and articulate, gymnast Peter Vidmar could easily go home from the Olympics a national hero and media star.

Because of the Soviet Olympic boycott, Vidmar, a two-time national champion, three-time runner-up and top U.S. Olympic qualifier, has a golden opportunity to win individual medals in the all-around or event competitions.

But Vidmar, 23, considers personal achievements a secondary goal. For him, the main quest is to bring home a team Olympic medal, something the United States has not done since 1932 but has a good chance of accomplishing this year, even if the Soviets were participating.

"As an individual I would like to perform as high as I can in the all-around," said Vidmar, whose best international all-around finish is a tie for ninth at 1983 world championships.

"If I keep that in mind, maybe I'll find myself in some of the event finals. I'm surely going to train for that (the all-around) and try to compete for that. But if I don't win one, and I still hit my routines, I will be satisfied because I'll have done the best I can do."

"I think the most important thing is for the United States Olympic team to do the best that it can and win the best medal that it can win. We have a good shot for a silver medal."

"We'll bet 100 gallons of gas you can't beat our super deals!"

A Lunker Surprises Spanish Fork Man

Paul Burton of Spanish Fork took his wife to Soldier Creek for a day of fishing and came away with a beauty. Using an eight-pound line with a six-pound leader, he pulled in a 6-1/2 pound Rainbow Trout measuring 23 inches in length. It highlighted a successful day of Cutthroat and Rainbow Trout fishing. "I was shore fishing in the shallows when I caught it," said Burton. "I don't expect to catch another one like that for a while." The fish was caught using worm as bait.

Special Control Permits Must Be In on July 31st

By MIKE HEMINGWAY
Outdoor Correspondent

It's time to get ready for the hunting season. You may think that July is a little early, but if you want to hunt on any of the special hunters that require drawings, your entries have to be into the Division of Wildlife by July 31.

The 1984-85 proclamations and applications are available at area sporting goods stores, so stop in and get your application.

When you are going over the proclamation, you see that there are some changes for this year's hunt. The changes include some new open areas, the introduction of limited access hunting areas, and a mail order only application system.

The first, and most important item, is that applications for special permits will only be accepted by mail order. The applications are available from license agents in the state and must be mailed to: Utah Big Game Permit Applications, P.O. Box 16500, Salt Lake City, Utah 84116. The deadline for deer control, restricted area elk, moose, and antelope is July 31.

Mike Hemingway

The DWR has introduced a couple of limited entry hunts. They are the Dixie-East Pine Valley and the San Juan-Elk Ridge units. Both areas have closed to hunting for the past couple of years. I do not know how the Pine Valley unit is, but from reports on the Elk Ridge unit, there are some super bucks. Since there has been no hunting, for several years in these areas, there ought to be some good trophies. It might be worth submitting an application to hunt one of the units if you are after a trophy buck.

When going over the proclamation, notice that there not many deer control permits this year. The hard winter has eliminated many of the excess deer. If you are interested in hunting for two deer, consider the archery hunt.

The permits for open area elk, archery deer, muzzle-loader, and archery elk can be purchased at DWR offices instead of by mail. That is an improvement over the system of mail application for some of the permits.

If you want to try any of the units, it's wise to get our proclamation in now. Even if you are just going to hunt on the regular deer hunt, stop in and get a copy of the laws.

show fishing. Boat fishing in the middle with worms is fair.

HOBBLE CREEK — Good Brown trout fishing on the lower section with No. 2 gold Vibrax.

SOLDIER CREEK — Green Carter spoon or green and yellow Strawberry Wobbler working well in the big bay behind the dike. Troll at one and one-half colors.

STRAWBERRY — Pink or yellow Carter Spoon great along Haws Point. Troll down three colors. Wobblers should start working in the next two weeks.

OTTERCREEK — Slow fishing but large fish being taken. Use black and white 960 Triple Teaser or black and pink Carter spoon.

GREEN RIVER — Excellent just below the dam. Use size seven floating Rainbow Rapala, black Willis jig or worms.

PELICAN — Four inch motor oil worms working well on the Bass and Bluegill. Small Yellow Poppers also working.

LAKE POWELL — Stripper fishing has been good in the main channel. Troll Herring rig or white Bomber water dog. Jump fishing with a Kastmaster or Zara Spook has been fair.

FLAMING GORGE — Small-mouth really in and hitting on black or green rabbit fur jig. Fish right off the points in up to 20-feet of water.

PINEVIEW — Crappie are hitting in about 10 feet of water right off the bushes. Spillway has been good for Rainbows on almost anything.

Lure Fishing Picking Up On Most Local Waters

By REX C. INFANGER

PROVO RIVER — Good fly fishing below the dam. Use a dark body elk hair caddis on top or size 12 caddis pupa on the bottom. Lower section near the lake has been good for Rainbows, just use worms.

DEER CREEK — Good perch fishing along the west shore with worms. West shore has also been good for Bass, use a Perch Shad Rap trolling with a down rigger. Frog flatfish or yellow Carter Spoon has been good for Browns.

GOOSEBERRY — Fair evening fishing. Use size 10 Hornberg with fly and bubble or troll with monofilament.

FAIRVIEW PONDS — Slow

Mormon Girls File Lawsuit

Marnee Martensen, 11, left, and Alysson Gibbs, 12, members of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, filed suit against the Navajo Bobby Sox Minor League, for being kicked off the all-star softball team in San Diego for refusing to practice on Sundays. The girls cited religious reasons for not practicing. Attorney M.K. Martensen, Marnee's father, filed the suit on behalf of the children. He said the move violates their constitutional right to freedom of religion.

Carl Lewis Says It's Performance He Cares About

HOUSTON (UPI) — Carl Lewis, a favorite to win four gold medals in the Olympics, said Wednesday medals and world records mean little to him. It's the performance that matters.

"My performance is the most important thing," Lewis said at a news conference. "Whatever medals I get, my parents will probably take them away and put them on display at their house."

As for world records, Lewis holds none despite being the top-ranked long jumper and 100-meter sprinter in the world.

"I've probably been getting as much media attention before the Olympics as anyone has ever gotten even after the Olympics. I think it proves that fans don't care about world records. They like competition," Lewis said. "My objective is not a world record but to compete well. I'd rather win all my events than set world records."

However, the 23-year-old New Jersey native who now makes his home in Houston to be near his coach, Tom Tellez, said he believes he has the ability to set world records in all three of his individual events — the long jump, 100 meters and 200 meters.

"I am super, super confident when I'm on the track. The performance is there, it's just a matter of hitting it at the right time," he said. "I can't put limits on what I'll do. I believe I can jump 30 feet. I believe I can run in the 9.8s. But if I jump 28 feet and run a 10.06 and win, that's fine."

Lewis, who will also run the anchor of the 400-meter relay, could be the first person to win gold medals in four track and field events since Jesse Owens did it in the 1936 Olympics.

Orem Maintains Lead In Tight Legion Race

By DOUG WILKS
Herald Sports Writer

The race for two state playoff berths is heating up in American Legion baseball action as Orem destroyed Provo 13-0 and Tri-Cities got by Helper 8-3 in action Wednesday.

The win by Orem gives the locals a 6-1 record to remain in front of Helper, 4-2. Tri-Cities, in a must-win situation, came from three runs down to overtake Helper and improve to a 3-4 league mark. Provo has one win on the season and is out of contention for the title.

Rick Fowler took the mound for Orem and tossed a one-hitter through four innings. Chris Boyak relieved Fowler in the fifth and retired the first three batters he faced to end the game on the 10-run rule.

"We really dominated the game," said Gerald Cooper, coach of Orem.

"It was a case of a walk, an error, a bunt single, you know. We hit the ball well too," he said. Shaun Morro and Chris Sherriff each added bases loaded singles to provide the bulk of the offense. Richard Lamoreaux crossed the plate three times for Orem, despite logging only one hit on the night.

Fowler was impressive on the mound, fanning seven strikeouts. Orem tossed only 16 batters during the game, one over the minimum. Orem and Tri-Cities, scheduled to play in American Fork, became interested onlookers at the Provo — Orem contest when a woman's softball game forced the clubs to relocate to the Timp Park diamond.

The change in venue apparently took its toll on Helper as it had already made the drive to American Fork.

Helper jumped out to a 3-0 lead but then suffered from the improved pitching of Shaun Story and the bat of Bronco Mendenhall.

"We had a 3-0 lead and then they just cranked us," said Elvin Juliano.

"Story got better as the game went along and we booted (the ball) around a bit. Plus we had to play in Provo and the game didn't get started until about 9 p.m."

Mendenhall belted a three-run homer in the sixth inning to effectively bury the visitors.

"We played well. It was a good game. We had to have it," said Scott Eldridge, coach of Tri-Cities.

He said his team knew they had to win the game to have a shot at the league title and a playoff spot. That motivation now remains for Helper as it most likely will come down to a battle between the two clubs for the second playoff spot.

"Normally they take 50 percent of the teams from the leagues. Then there may be a chance for the other teams to playoff for a spot," said Eldridge of his team's chance at the playoffs.

Orem does not have a lock on the title but has looked impressive both in pitching and hitting. The team has played fewer than normal games this season but Cooper said it is by design.

"Before we use to play a lot more ball games and the kids would get burned out. This year we have intentionally not been in a lot of tournaments."

The goal is to peak in the tournament and hopefully bring the American Legion championship to Utah County.

Tri-Cities is in action today at the three-day Firecracker Tournament in Salt Lake City. Helper travels to Provo Friday and Orem is off until next week.

Notable Sports Quotes

"One of the great distractions of professional sports are the bump-and-grind girls they have. I think they detract immensely from the sport. There's no real enthusiasm there. It's like we're selling a picture of a naked gal on the cover of the Methodist hymnal. What the hell do you need sex for to see professional sports? I think that's demeaning to the sport. If I were involved in a professional franchise, the first thing I'd do is fire the girls." — Olympic Basketball coach Bobby Knight on pro cheerleaders.

"I really had the desire to win this match. I just had to prove everybody wrong, and I did. I think maybe Hana underestimated me. She was talking so much about reaching the final. When people underestimate me and write me off I just come through." — Chris Evert-Lloyd after crushing Hana Mandlikova in the Wimbledon semi-finals.

"They said everyone would have to be on an outer court, and they haven't been. I don't think it's fair. They either should say that Connors and McEnroe are a bigger draw and they're going to stay inside and everyone else will play outside once, or say that every player will play one match outside and stick to it. Maybe they think no one will notice." — Wimbledon second-seed Ivan Lendl after winning a match on an outside court.

"Tell him when he wins the tournament then he'll have a right to complain." — two-time Wimbledon champ Jimmy Connors in response to Lendl's complaint about court scheduling.

"We just out-toughed them. We were tough tonight and I thought we were in better shape than they were. If this game had been played at the time it was originally scheduled to be played (12:30 in the afternoon), it wouldn't have been a contest." — Arizona coach George Allen after the Wranglers beat the L.A. Express 35-23 in 100 degree temperatures Saturday night in Tempe.

"It was an audible called at the line of scrimmage. We've used it in the past and it worked. I'm the head coach, I'll take the blame." — Express coach John Hadl talking about an ill-fated attempted fake punt that failed late in the second quarter.

"This is the only team I've ever played against that can play a seven-man zone and still put enough pressure on you to cause problems. I've never seen that before." — Express quarterback Steve Young after he was sacked four times and intercepted twice by the Arizona defense.

"It's a great thing to know your teammates are behind you 100 percent. That last drive showed the kind of team we have. We never quit. We turned a losing attitude into a winning one." — L.A.'s Steve Young referring to the final three minutes of the Western Conference title game, when the Express were down 35-17 but still drove the ball eighty yards in seven plays and scored on a 20-yard TD pass.

"Whether he's worth $36 million until the age of 65, or whatever, is irrelevant. Steve Young, the quarterback whiz of the USFL Los Angeles Express, wins the admiration of Hall of Famer Sid Gillman, 72.

"Gillman calls Young 'the smartest football player I have ever met or coached — and that's in 50 years of coaching.'

The rap against the Express quarterback by envious NFL pros is that he can't throw long downfield. But it'll be dismissed as soon as his coaches map out a system that will call for him to try for the bomb, and as soon as he gets some adequate receivers to run under the ball. He has sufficient arm strength." — NEA columnist Murray Olderman.

"It was good to be able to contribute against Toronto for a change. I think I've been putting too much pressure on myself to do well against the Jays." — Former Toronto Blue Jay fielder Barry Bonnell, now with Seattle, after his RBI single sparked the Mariners on to victory over the Jays. Bonnell was 2-for-21 against Toronto before that.

"I've seen a few thousand games, but I've never had one like that. We used 23 players and two of them were cripples." — St. Louis manager Whitey Herzog after the Cards came back from a 6-2 ninth-inning deficit to beat the L.A. Dodgers 8-6 in 12 innings. The "cripples" were Willie McGee and David Green, both of whom injured a leg in the game but played anyway. Green got the game-winning RBI.

Orem Civic Pride Service Planned Saturday in Shell

All the members of Orem City's civic clubs and organizations will gather Saturday in the Scera Shell to participate in the first ever Orem Civic Pride Convocation.

The event is designed to attract the entire membership of the Orem civic organizations and the purpose is to coordinate volunteer programs in the city so that they will be supported and enhanced without duplication of effort, according to Clyde E. Weeks, Orem Postmaster and chairman of the event.

"The convocation is also designed to generate goodwill and friendship among the various organizations, and to promote awareness of what each group is doing in order to make the best use of resources," said Weeks.

The event will begin at 2:30 p.m. and each club member is encouraged to bring a box lunch and enjoy a concert in the Shell while they eat. The Orem Community Band will be performing under the direction of Wes Barry.

At 3 p.m. the meeting will begin with presentations being made on behalf of their clubs by Ray Bishop, Orem Kiwanis Club; Harold Wolfson, Orem Lions Club; Richard Hillam, Orem Seroma Club; Ernie Summers, Orem Boosters, Inc.; Virginia Washburn, Orem Women's Club; Roger Lewis, Orem Rotary Club; Stan Taylor, Orem Kiwanis Golden K Club; Wes Barry, Orem Community Band; David Taylor, Orem Chamber of Commerce; and Norm Nielson, SCERA.

Orem Library to Display Energy Books This Month

An Energy Library, located in the Orem City Public Library, will be opening July 18, 1984. The Energy Library consists of over seventy-five books on home energy management, energy saving home improvements, insulation, renewable energy sources, solar energy, energy conscious construction, and "Insulating It Right," a video on home insulation.

An open house for the public will be held July 18 at 7:00 p.m. in the Multi Purpose room at the City Center. Orem City's Mayor Squires will be in attendance to present the awards for the children's poster contest. After the Mayor's presentation will be the premier showing of "Insulating It Right." The video includes demonstrations on how to check for insulation in existing homes, and how to install insulation in a new home, as well as information on various types of insulation and insulation regulations. Several of the books from the Energy Library, a bibliography, and pamphlets on home energy conservation will be displayed and available to the public. Refreshments will be served.

Mayor Squires will accept the library in behalf of Orem City at the new City Council meeting July 17.

"Insulating It Right" and the books for the Energy Library were made possible through a grant from the Utah Energy Office.

The Energy Library is opening in response to rising energy costs and rapid depletion of energy resources. The Orem City Energy Office hopes that the books will be widely read and the information used to assist City residents in lowering their energy bills and reducing energy costs.

Mayor Ferguson Serving On State Flood Task Force

Mayor James E. Ferguson has been appointed by Governor Scott Matheson to serve on the Flood Control Task Force which was set up by the 1984 budget session of the state legislature.

The task force will study inter-county flooding problems and prepare a plan to solve the problems of multiple county flood control jurisdictions and report that plan to the 1985 general session of the legislature.

"The flooding problems during the past two years in the cities and counties of Utah have posed increasing demands on public agencies to deal effectively with this state-wide problem," Ferguson said. "The effects of flooding in the state of Utah are not confined to isolated city or county jurisdictions but affect a multitude of jurisdictions that must be coordinated to effectively manage the limited resources available to cities, counties and state."

Nephi Adopts Get Tough Policy on Baseball Teams

NEPHI — Nephi City has adopted a "get tough" policy regarding baseball teams who use the city ball diamond — its either pay or no play.

Several weeks ago Nephi City Councilmen voted to levy a fee for all teams who use the field during the summer. The fee will pay for upkeep and field improvements. At that time councilmen determined to charge for use of the field in advance.

Now however, the council has decided ball teams must pay in advance or they will not be allowed to continue to use the diamonds.

City administrator, Randy McKnight, says teams have scheduled use of the facilities but have not yet paid for their use. If teams do not pay the fees they will not use the field.

McKnight says park scheduling personnel will be warned that although a game has been scheduled it may not be played unless both teams have paid the fee.

Bangerter, Marriott Debate Hinges on Experience, Mates

By J.J. JACKSON
Herald Correspondent

Meeting Wednesday in Provo for their first formal debate with each other, Republican gubernatorial candidates Norm Bangerter and Dan Marriott differed on little more than the definition of a surplus.

And who has the best background for Utah's governor's office.

After peddling "experience" as the issue through much of the debate at Brigham Young University's Ernest L. Wilkinson Center, the pair disagreed during their closing remarks as to whether an announced $60-65,000 surplus in the state's budget should really be termed a surplus.

"It's a one-time shot and we ought to save it," Marriott said, indicating extra money should be referred to as a surplus only when originating from sources which appear in the budget each year.

After the meeting, he suggested the extra money resulted from Proposition One's allowing more property tax to be collected from businesses. "That surplus probably won't be there next year," he said.

He told those at the meeting, sponsored by the BYU College Republicans, that to term the extra money as surplus money was "voodoo economics."

"It is not 'voodoo economics' because the money is actually there," Bangerter responded. After the meeting, Bangerter noted the extra money had nothing to do with Proposition One since property taxes go to the county and schools, not the state coffers.

Both candidates noted they had not studied the figures relating to the "surplus."

Bangerter and Marriott cited experience a vital issue dividing the two tickets for the Republican nomination for governor and lieutenant governor. Marriott insisted he and running mate Karl Snow offer a "balance between federal experience and state experience."

Campaign 1984

The gubernatorial hopeful said he has spent eight years as a U.S. representative "working full-time on state issues." He warned against disregarding federal experience, noting he has made contacts in the national government and "their presence is worth $4 billion a year."

Bangerter countered with his experience as speaker of the Utah House and running mate Val Oveson's background as state auditor. Both candidates lauded their running mates. Marriott called Snow "a man who knows more about the intricate workings of the state than anyone in state government."

Bangerter called Oveson "the most effective state auditor we have had in a long, long time, if not in the state's history."

Marriott promised Snow would play a "major role" in his administration, but said he was not ready to itemize what Snow's duties would be.

The four-term U.S. congressman suggested some of the duties Bangerter is reserving for Oveson might be better handled by a hired, non-elected employee.

Bangerter said Oveson would be over administrative services, saving the state $70,000 annually by not hiring such an individual.

The two republican candidates each took jabs at present Democrat Gov. Scott Matheson, for spending too much time in Washington.

"I'm not running for third senator," Bangerter said, noting Matheson could have spent more time on the day-to-day operations of the state.

Bangerter called Matheson a "decisive governor" who was honest with him, but said the Democrat was also "too confrontative" with the republican legislature and "too sensitive about the separation of power issue... too concerned about saying 'You're in my territory,' instead of saying 'Let's look at your proposal and see what merit is in it.'"

Marriott also derided Matheson, saying the current governor has "not spent enough time in Utah attending to the state." The governor, Marriott said, has spent too much time "fooling around with things we have a good congressional delegation to deal with."

Building the state's economy and addressing educational needs were listed as high priorities by both candidates. "The business of Utah is business," Marriott said, noting he wanted to build the state's tax base "so we can raise the revenues without raising the tax base."

Adding to the tax base will also help education, he said. "There has been a war between the legislature and the educators," he said, noting school teachers are demanding more money, but the legislature doesn't have the money to give them because of an inadequate tax base.

Marriott called education his "No. 1 spending priority" and said class sizes need to be cut, attention given to vocational education, and students must be required to learn more in their early years.

Bangerter said teachers "have to earn more money," but suggested finding cuts within the school systems to help cover the pay increases. "Forty-two out of every 100 people that work for education in Utah do not teach," he said.

Acknowledging the problems of funding education, Bangerter noted, "We spend less per student in Utah than any other state."

One Inmate Dies; Two Given Stays

JACKSON, Ga. (UPI) — Ivon Ray Stanley, 28, a black high school dropout, died in the electric chair early today for the 1976 murder of an insurance salesman who was robbed, beaten, shot and then buried alive.

Stanley's death was to have been followed within seven hours by the nation's first double execution in 19 years, but the two Florida murderers scheduled to die won temporary stays.

Their death warrants do not expire until noon Friday, however, and authorities at Florida state prison near Starke stood ready to carry out the executions if their appeals to the 11th Circuit Court in Atlanta fail.

The Atlanta court ordered back-to-back hearings this morning for Jimmy Lee Smith, 30, and David Leroy Washington, 34. Washington's stay, granted by a lower court, was good until 6:59 a.m. Friday.

Stanley, who had an IQ of 81, died stony-faced and silent at 12:24 a.m. EDT, the 21st man executed in the United States and the second in Georgia since the Supreme Court dropped its ban on the death penalty in 1976.

He ate squash, peanut butter cookies and vanilla ice cream for his last meal, and refused several times in his final hours to see a minister.

"He's not religious," said prison spokesman Fred Steeples. "He doesn't make any pretensions."

After Stanley was strapped into the electric chair, Warden Ralph Kemp asked if he had any last words. Stanley shook his head negatively. Kemp asked the condemned man if he wanted a minister, and he shook his head again.

Three volunteer prison guards punched identical buttons — only one of which was operating — to send the 2,080 volts coursing through Stanley's body.

Outside the prison in a grassy field, his grandmother — who raised him — his mother, brother and step-sister joined a small group of death penalty protesters. Stanley refused to allow his family to witness his death.

Drunk Inmates Seize Prison Wing

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Inmates who stabbed one guard, took another hostage and seized control of a maximum security wing of Tennessee State Prison may have been intoxicated from "homemade brew," authorities say.

Guard Joe Havis was listed in guarded condition early today with "multiple" wounds from a prison-made knife after surgery at Vanderbilt Hospital. Guard James McAdams, taken hostage in the incident Wednesday night, was released unharmed 1 1/2 hours later.

"There is some evidence homemade brew had been in the unit," said Corrections Commissioner Ernest Pellegrin. Inmates use vegetable scraps and sugar to concoct an alcoholic beverage known as "prison julep."

The guards were attacked shortly before 7 p.m. EDT Wednesday as they opened cell doors in a maximum security wing to let inmates out for their evening meal.

When the door was opened to one cell housing six convicts, an inmate began stabbing Havis, Pellegrin said. Another officer then hit the inmate over the head and was able to pull Havis out of the unit.

But other inmates grabbed McAdams and took him hostage.

Gritz Says He Can Prove POWs in Asia

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) — A retired Green Beret colonel, who has traveled to Southeast Asia four times since the Vietnam War, claimed he has evidence to prove at least 100 American servicemen remain prisoners of war in the area.

"That's not just a number we pulled out of a hat," retired Col. James "Bo" Gritz said at a news conference Wednesday. "I believe there are probably more than 50 in Laos and probably as many in Vietnam and Cambodia."

Gritz said 2,500 servicemen who fought in Southeast Asia remain on the government rolls as missing in action and urged "everyone to write their congressman to demand that the government find out about these missing men."

"We must stop being a nation that is entertained and get involved," he said, claiming that government officials of several administrations have ignored evidence of Americans alive in Southeast Asia.

Gritz said he believed the POWs are being held more than a decade after the Vietnam war as bargaining chips to gain economic aid from the U.S. He showed an Air Force Academy ring belonging to Lt. Lance Peter Sijan and said the academy has dedicated a dormitory in memory of the Medal of Honor winner.

Gritz did not claim Sijan remained alive.

The former Green Beret officer also showed reporters a photograph of what he claimed was an American POW and said the man remains alive as a captive in Southeast Asia.

Soviet Union Suspected In 'Hate' Campaign

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The State Department links the Soviet Union to a series of hate leaflets that threaten Third World athletes who compete in the Summer Olympics but a Soviet spokesman calls the allegations ridiculous.

Leaflets have so far been received by the Olympic committees in Zimbabwe, Sri Lanka, South Korea, Malaysia and China. None of those countries has joined the Soviet Union's boycott of the Summer Games in Los Angeles, which start July 28.

State Department spokesman Alan Romberg said the leaflets "bear all the hallmarks of a disinformation campaign" and he noted the thrust of the message in the leaflets "dovetails neatly with the Soviet justification for their withdrawal" from the Summer Games.

Viktor Degtyar, spokesman for the Soviet Embassy in Washington, said, "The allegations are ridiculous, pure nonsense. They speak for themselves."

In Moscow, the Soviet news agency Tass said the leaflets, allegedly written by the Ku Klux Klan, "only expressed in an extremely base manner what the architects of American policy have in their mind."

The Soviets pulled out of the games because they said the safety of their athletes could not be assured by the United States. That rationale, rejected by the administration, followed an intensive campaign in the Soviet press describing the dangers of the "street jungle" of Los Angeles.

They have been joined by

The Olympics — for the Whites Only!

AFRICAN MONKEYS!
A GRAND WELCOME AWAITS YOU IN LOS ANGELES!
WE HAVE BEEN TRAINING FOR THE GAMES BY SHOOTING AT BLACK MOVING TARGETS. IN LOS ANGELES OUR OWN OLYMPIC FLAMES ARE READY TO INCINERATE YOU. THE HIGHEST AWARD FOR A TRUE AMERICAN PATRIOT WOULD BE THE LYNCHING OF AN AFRICAN MONKEY.

BLACKS, WELCOME TO THE LOS ANGELES OLYMPICS!
WE'LL GIVE YOU A RECEPTION THAT YOU'LL NEVER FORGET!

Leaflets contain syntax, other errors which make them suspect.

the most faithful of the Eastern European satellites, but Eastern European sources say the Soviets have been running into unexpected public skepticism and opposition in countries such as East Germany and Hungary about the reasons behind the boycott.

The leaflet received by the Zimbabwe national Olympic committee threatened to shoot, kill or burn black competitors. It ends, "Blacks, welcome to the Los Angeles Olympics. We'll give you a reception that you'll never forget."

Computers...

Never on Sunday

PARAMUS, N.J. (UPI) — It's illegal to interface, access or log on in Paramus on Sunday.

And a judge says the borough's law prohibiting the use of business computers on the day of rest will stand until a lawsuit on the issue goes to court.

Bergen County Superior Court Judge Harvey Smith refused to issue a temporary injunction Tuesday barring the municipality from applying its "blue law" to the use of computers.

The 1957 ordinance bans "worldly employment or business, except works of necessity or charity," and is more stringent than similar laws in Bergen and Hudson counties that prohibit Sunday sale of everything but necessities.

Crime Czar Death Effect Uncertain

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (UPI) — The death of tough-talking Raymond L.S. Patriarca, one of America's last old-time reputed mob figures, ended a ruthless 40-year reign over organized crime in New England.

The impact of his fatal heart attack Wednesday at age 76 on the region's mob hierarchy was termed uncertain by law enforcement officials.

Patriarca was one of the last of a vanishing breed of crime czars in America who were able to control their syndicates for decades. Many of the other old timers either retired or died of natural or unnatural causes.

"If he isn't the last, he's certainly one of the last. He's certainly close to the end of the list. I don't think anybody can say with certainty," said Jeremiah O'Sullivan, the head of the U.S. Justice Department's New England Organized Crime Strike Force in Boston.

Crime Warrior

Jailed for Murder

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — James Hawkins Jr., whose shooting of a gang member touched off a neighborhood war that made his family the victim of violence and terror, is jailed on suspicion of killing two reputed cocaine dealers.

A paroled killer, Marshall Bridges, also was booked for the murders.

Payson Recreation Director Will Cease to Be Paid For

By CLARK H. CARAS
Herald Staff Writer

PAYSON—Payson residents will have no city recreation director in the coming year and therefore no community recreation programs because of money being left out of this year's budget, according to Don Dixon, city councilman.

"When they drew up the budget this year they left out the money to fund the job of recreation director. Usually the city of Payson has paid for half with the other half of the funding coming from Nebo School District," said Dixon.

The issue of whether or not to re-establish funding for the position will be discussed in the regular city council meeting tonight at 7 p.m., according to Dixon.

South County

"The school district had not been informed until I called them Wednesday. They said they would have liked to have discussed this before it was done."

"Apparently their impression is that there just won't be any community recreation through the schools next year if there is no funding for it," said Dixon.

Last year's budget set aside $7,000 for payment of the recreation director with another $7,000 coming from the school district, according to Dixon.

"I'm caught because I voted for the budget, but they just present it all to you and you have to vote on it all or nothing sometimes. I wish they would have left it the way it was because I liked it that way," he said.

People in the community aren't aware of the change because it won't affect them until next year when there is no community recreation," said Dixon.

UTC-Valtek Marriage Is Helping Both Parties With Industrial Project

By STEVE STRONG

What does a local control valve plant and a nearby technical college have in common? Quite a bit if the college is Utah Technical College in Provo-Orem, and the plant is Valtek.

Located in Springville, Valtek is a global automatic control valve manufacturer with a surprising number of tie-ins with the local college.

"Overall, it's a college-industry relationship at its best," says Larry Goodwin, Human Resources director at Valtek.

Interaction between Valtek and UTC abounds. Examples:

— Valtek employees on UTC advisory boards. They include Valtek Board Chairman Charles L. Bates (UTC institutional council) Phil Peterson (electrical and automation advisory committee) Nile Christofferson (welding advisory committee) and Larry Goodwin (machine trades advisory committee).

— On-the-job work experience for UTC students. These programs include special projects and cooperative education curricula in the machine shop and drafting departments.

— College training evaluation. Valtek employees give regular feedback to UTC regarding its quality of education and training.

— Job interviews. Recorded on videotape, they are conducted by Goodwin so that students can gain job interview experience. In addition, many students are placed at Valtek through the UTC Placement Office.

— Tours of the Valtek facility. These are given to UTC students throughout the school year to familiarize them with the workings of industry.

"Valtek has hired our graduates from drafting and machine trades. The company has continuously given us input on our curriculum and suggestions on how to upgrade our instructional techniques," says Gil Cook, director of Outreach community service activity and assistant to the vice-president of UTC.

According to Cook, Valtek gives UTC cooperative education students a work experience unmatched elsewhere in Central Utah. "Valtek is state-of-the-art," says Cook. "The company gives our students outstanding experience."

Valtek Maintenance Foreman Phil Peterson was recently given an award of appreciation from UTC — the result of work he has done for the college's cooperative work experience program.

Peterson started the program which involves UTC students wiring automatic control valves at Valtek in Springville. He says six students visit the plant at a time, receiving both work experience and an hourly wage.

"More than money, though, the students get an opportunity to learn," says Peterson. "This type of experience also looks very good on resumes."

Peterson, a 1973 UTC graduate, is one of 16 such graduates who work at Valtek. He says that in the five years since the program began, the school has sent three cooperative education students to his department at Valtek. Two of them are on the permanent staff.

One of those employees is Maintenance Leadman Bernard Cope, who praises the co-op program at Valtek with UTC/Provo.

"We try to work closely with UTC," he says. "It's always good for their students to actually work in the field they're studying."

Peterson says the cooperative work experience program has been effective because both Valtek and UTC students benefit from it. "It's an opportunity for students to get into industry," says Peterson. "And it's an opportunity for industry to benefit from their talents."

Goodwin agrees. "The students gain experience on jobs and the business world, and we in industry get to influence what type of education and training the students are receiving."

National Summary

By United Press International

Violent thunderstorms knocked out power from Arkansas to New York, a tornado cut a swath between two busy Massachusetts highways, and firefighters began to gain the upper hand over brushfires in the West.

Showers and thunderstorms packing heavy rains were scattered early today in a band extending from New England down the mid-Atlantic Coast, then westward to West Texas. An inch of rain fell in about an hour shortly before midnight in Memphis, Tenn.

A dry thunderstorm with winds to 52 mph knocked down power lines in southern Nevada, leaving 20,000 customers without power for several hours Wednesday night and damaging some boats moored at Lake Mead near Las Vegas.

Firefighters contained a pair of lightning-caused brushfires that scorched more than 8,600 acres in southeast Oregon, and said they hoped to have them under control by tonight.

Nearly 2,000 firefighters hoped diminishing winds would help them control a brush fire that has charred 22,000 acres in California's Sequoia National Forest since Saturday.

A tornado dipped out of a driving rain storm Wednesday in North Adams, Mass., cutting a 500-foot-wide, half-mile-long path of destruction. It scattered 70-foot willow trees like match sticks at a drive-in theater, tossed about cars and metal at a nearby scrapyard, and damaged a machine company.

Donald Morin said the tornado started suddenly in the north corner of a pasture. "It darkened up so fast that in a matter of 10 minutes the street lights came on," Morin said. "We watched it come over the mountain in back of Durant Carpets (company) and then all of a sudden it started to twirl and it sucked all the clouds right in."

Severe thunderstorms swept upstate New York. Lightning set a house afire at Sherill in Oneida County, violent winds damaged several homes, uprooted trees and shoved a car into a garage, and high winds and heavy rain knocked out power to about 5,500 Niagara Mohawk customers north and east of Albany.

Arkansas storms caused minor flooding in several locations, and lightning struck an electric substation at Decatur, forcing a poultry processing operation to take extraordinary means to save its chickens.

Sp. Fork Council OKs Zone Change

By LEANN MOODY
Spanish Fork Correspondent

SPANISH FORK — The city council waded through a list of business last Thursday as it granted a zone change, approval for a new LDS stake house and gave the okay for a fireman's memorial at the cemetery.

Postponed until future meetings were the awarding of bids on the administration public works building at the waste water treatment plant site and a final decision on a special improvement district for 10th North Street.

Approval was given to Roy Tolson, owner of the Cherry Acres Orchard on State Highway 6, for a zone change to commercial zone one.

This zone change will allow for future development. Tolson told the council that development included tentative plans for a convenience store, hotel and recreation area.

Also given the okay was an ordinance dealing with travel trailer parks. The city prior to this document did not have any guidelines for such facilities.

The council told City Fire Chief Lloyd Miller that it was in favor of the monument but would like to meet with the firemen and city cemetery people before giving a final okay.

According to Miller the department would furnish the monument at no cost to the city with the exception of a small area of ground in the cemetery donated by the city.

Miller noted it was becoming increasingly difficult to honor deceased firemen because of numbers and so the department decided to build the monument.

The council also approved a new LDS stake center to be constructed by next summer on property across from Spanish Fork Junior High School.

In other business the council postponed again bids on a public works administration building because of a lack of information.

The council is still taking a look at costs and engineering for the facility.

The council also agreed to meet with citizens in the 10th North area and try again for a special improvement district to completely pave, curb and gutter that project.

The project includes the finishing of 10th North Street by connecting it with Highway 6 by the Expressway Plaza.

Residents of the area this past spring had opposed the road saying the completed street would increase traffic in that residential area.

The city, however, says the road will go through and is anxious to begin work on it.

Other matters voted upon by the council were:

— Approval of an addition to the Little Acorn Restaurant for a larger eating space and another addition to the Spanish Fork Packing Plant.

— The announcement of plans to purchase some 57 acre feet of water from the East Bench Irrigation company. The council noted it was part of building of future water supplies to continue to provide low cost service.

— Honored Marilyn Leifson and Ann Osborn who are retiring from the library board. Filling their spots will be Janet Scott and Herb Wilson, Jr.

— Approved the following members in a reorganization of the Spanish Fork Art Council: Joann Woodhouse, chairperson; Gary Call, vice chairman; Vickie Stahle, secretary; Ron Payne, publicity; Rebecca Coombs, Gary Schwartz, John Taylor, Roger Weight, Doreen Von Arsdale, Lynn and Zelma Pendleton, Jeff Peterson and Bob Bunce.

Youth Jobs Available Through MAG, JPTA

Youths aged 16-18 years old are encouraged to take advantage of six to eight weeks of employment available now through the Mountainland Association of Governments JPTA (Job Training Partnership Act) summer youth work program in Provo.

Brent McGregor, director of JPTA program services, said youths can choose from 20- or 40-hour work weeks through the end of August or during high school. They can earn $3.35 an hour as parks and recreation maintenance workers, carpenters, secretaries and other in other clerical positions.

Most of the jobs are with city or county governments or state-operated agencies. Others are with private, non-profit corporations such as local Chambers of Commerce. McGregor said each trainee is placed according to his interests and availability of openings.

McGregor said there haven't been enough employers wanting to hire under the summer youth program. "But this year we have more employers than youth applicants."

Application deadline is July 16 at 5 p.m. Youths wanting summer work should file an application immediately with the Mountainland JPTA, Career Guidance Center, 305 N. 200 W., Provo. A parent must accompany the applicant and provide verification of age and family income.

For more information, contact the Mountainland JPTA at 377-2262.

What is LaserDisc? LaserDisc is the high fidelity videodisc system developed by Pioneer. The LaserDisc looks like a phonograph record. It turns, however, at 1800 RPM! The laser beam reads the disc without touching it at all, therefore there is no wear with repeated playings. Pioneer LaserDisc produces a picture that is very high quality. It produces high fidelity sound. The LaserDiscs are practically indestructible.

The Pioneer 660 Disc player (not shown) costs only $399.95 and can be played through your existing television and if you have a stereo the sound can be played through it. In spite of the low cost the sound and picture quality are better than those produced by VCR units.

What can you see on Laser Vision? Movies, such as "Raiders of the Lost Ark". For 29.95 you can see it as many times as you want. You can see "Patton" or "The Sound of Music", "Fiddler on the Roof" or "War Games". How about "Superman III", "Poltergeist" and "Rocky 1, II or Rocky III". You can see all kinds of Walt Disney films at 24.95.

In addition you can see and hear your favorite music in high fidelity sound and picture! Billy Joel, Duran Duran, Abba, Swan Lake Ballet, Aida or La Boheme. See on Videodisc 1645 works of art at the National Gallery of Art!

You can see the LaserDisc in action at Allen's in Provo and in Orem.

Senators Announce Formation of Judicial Selection Panel

SALT LAKE CITY — Utah's two U.S. Senators, Jake Garn and Orrin Hatch announced Monday the formation of a new judicial selection commission to nominate candidates for the state's fourth federal judgeship. The judgeship was created as part of bankruptcy improvement legislation which unanimously passed the Senate on the closing day before recess.

The bankruptcy bill passed out of the Judiciary Committee under the leadership of Sen. Hatch who was a chief sponsor of the legislation on the Senate floor and a principle conferee in a conference with the House.

The senators said the bi-partisan commission will nominate five candidates of merit for the President's consideration. "Utah is one of a very few states which has senators who use a merit selection commission approach to nominate individuals of merit who will represent the judiciary in a most competent and responsible manner," Hatch said.

"The commission is made up of individuals representing a broad geographical and political balance," Garn said. "The Utah Bar Association has already submitted the names of two attorneys which will be on the commission."

"Although Utah was not initially in line for a fourth judgeship, the case load in the federal judiciary was so substantial,"

Hatch argued, "that the state certainly warranted a new federal judge." Hatch then amended the bankruptcy legislation in committee to add a federal judgeship for Utah.

Just getting the bankruptcy bill to the floor of the Senate took over a year of debate and controversy. "But now it's on the President's desk for his signature which should come shortly," Garn said.

Hatch said the bankruptcy bill also contains a new 10th Circuit Court of Appeals judgeship. "We're working hard on that one, too," Hatch added. "As in the fourth Utah judgeship, once a commission recommends the five candidates, they'll be submitted to the President for his choice and then on to the Senate for confirmation.

"But because of the short legislative session this year, odds are that the person nominated by the President will not reach the Senate for confirmation until next year."

The Judicial Nominating Commission will be chaired by Harold Christensen, a leading Utah attorney, and the Commission members include: Robert Bischoff, President, Commercial Security Bank; Edward W. Clyde, Attorney, Senior partner of Clyde, Pratt, Gibb, & Cahoon; Rodney Brady, President, Weber State College; Rev. Theodore T. Fields, Pastor, Pilgrim Baptist Church;

Pamela Greenwood, Attorney, President, Salt Lake County Bar Association, General Counsel, First Interstate Bank of Utah; Pauline Hills, homemaker; Gene Hansen, selected by the Utah State Bar Association to represent the Senior Bar; former president of the Utah Bar Association; H. Michael Keller, selected by the Utah State Bar Association to represent the Young Lawyer Section; Virginia Kelson, Executive Director, Phoenix Institute; Gayle McKeachnie, Attorney, Nielson & Senior; Jeff Olson, Associate Dean, University of Utah's College of Law; Erbey Satterfield, President, Northern Utah Labor Council; Naomi Shumway, Utah State House of Representative; Jim Schulz, Vice President, Skaggs Telecommunications Service; Lynn Wardle, Professor of law, J. Reuben Clark Law School, BYU; and Robert Wright, Attorney, Jones, Waldo, Holbrook & McDonough.

All interested parties wanting to be considered for the fourth judgeship should send a letter of application and resume to United States Judicial Selection Commission, Attention: Harold Christensen, Chairman, P.O. Box 3000, Salt Lake City, Utah 84110. Applications can be picked up at the Utah State Bar Association. Applications must be received at that address no later than July 23, 1984.

The workshop will feature daily solo recitals, faculty panel discussions and three levels of chamber orchestras for the students and recreational activities. For registration information, contact BYU Conferences and Workshops at 378-3556.

Theater

The Pageant of the Arts will be performed through July 20 except Sundays. This years show will again feature the voice of Aaron Card, narrator, and appropriate music as they recreate your favorite selection. New pieces have been added including work by Norman Rockwell. The pageant will be at the American Fork High School, 501 N. 600 E., American Fork. Tickets may be obtained at the Pageant of the Arts ticket office, 756-3541 or by inquiring at the Pageant of the Arts office, 54 E. Main, Box 111, American Fork, Utah 84003.

"Pippin," is the story of the oldest son of Charlemagne and heir to the Holy Roman Empire. He tries love, war, and politics before finding happiness. Keeping in tradition with Sundance plays it is bright, humorous and full of singing and dancing. It plays nightly at 8:30 p.m., Monday through Saturday until July 16. From July 10 to Aug. 30th it will play even calendar nights. Reservations are required every night except Monday. Dress warmly and get there early. For more information call 225-4107.

"Fiddler on the Roof," is a touching musical about Tevye, a Jewish dairyman and his family. He realizes that the ways of "tradition" no longer suffice and Tevye and his family have to face the changing world. Sundance Summer Theatre will present this play beginning July 7th and it will alternate with "Pippin" through September 3rd. For tickets and information call 225-4107.

"Cinderella," is the musical version of the same classic story we have all heard from childhood. The play will run every Friday, Saturday and Monday evenings through July 23. "Cinderella," can be seen at the Alhambra Theatre, 20 S. Main, Pleasant Grove. For tickets and more information call 785-4969 or 756-2929.

The Park City Shakespeare Festival will be playing on the ice rink at the Resort Center this summer. It will play every Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Saturday afternoons at 2 p.m. The Festival will feature "Midsummer Night's Dream," which will play on Thursdays, "Twelfth Night," playing on Fridays, and "Richard III," playing on Saturday nights. "Twelfth Night" and "Midsummer Night's Dream" will alternate on Saturday afternoons.

"Promised Valley," the classic Mormon musical that depicts the settling of the Great Salt Lake Valley will have a new look. James Arrington felt it needed some revision to make it work as well in an enclosed theater as it does in an outdoor setting. There are new sets and costumes in addition to the reworked songs. "Promised Valley" is at the Promised Valley Playhouse and continues through Aug. 25. Tickets can be purchased at the box office, 132 S. State Street, Salt Lake City, or by calling 364-5678.

The annual Utah Shakespearean Festival opens July 12 in Cedar City. Plays for 1984 are "The Taming of the Shrew," "The Tempest," and "Troilus and Cressida" as well as matinee performances of "The Taming of the Shrew" and "The Queen's Feste." The Festival is located on the campus of Southern Utah State College. "The Queen's Feste," a musical matinee will be presented each Monday and Friday afternoon. There will be Chamber Concert Musicians playing Renaissance music, Sonnet readings and light refreshments. Matinees are performed on the Indoor Stage beginning July 21 at 2 p.m., and all matinees replicate evening performances as nearly as possible. There will be seminars, backstage tours, orientations and a nightly greenshow preceding each performance. For ticket information concerning the Festival please write Utah Shakespearean Festival, Cedar City, Utah 84702, or call 586-7880.

Fraud Task Force Hears Stories of Utah Schemes

LOGAN, Utah (UPI) — The organizer of a scheme that bilked residents in three states out of $4.5 million, in part by selling shares in a non-existent gold mine, has never been prosecuted, a committee investigating fraud was told.

The Securities Fraud Task Force, appointed by Gov. Scott Matheson to investigate whether Utah's reputation as the "fraud capital of the nation" is earned, held its first hearing Tuesday night.

The committee heard from 21 residents and law officers, who testified on how they or others were taken in by a massive fraud scheme involving gold mines, silver coins and commodities.

Cache County Detective Sgt. George Becker said Financial Horizons of Logan and Brentwood Management Co. of Salt Lake City bilked residents of Utah, Idaho and Wyoming out of $4.5 million.

Cache County Sheriff Douglas

Bodrero said his office conducted an extensive investigation in the dealings of Robert Porter, owner of the two companies. He said the evidence was turned over to the Attorney General's Office, which filed a civil lawsuit against Porter. But no criminal actions were ever filed, the sheriff said.

"There were significant criminal violations which were never filed," Bodrero said. "He could have been located and returned to the state where he would have been labeled for what he was."

Dr. John Bailey of Logan said he responded to advertisements by Porter and invested $60,000 in his companies.

"I met with him and was impressed with his conservative financial advice," Bailey told the task force. "In retrospect I'm amazed by my own gullibility and stupidity."

Dr. Lamb

He said he invested $10,000 in a commodities management program, but got back 50 percent when he saw the program was not working. Then, Bailey said he went ahead and invested $50,000 in Brentwood Management, supposedly for part ownership of an Arizona gold mine.

Bodrero said Arizona officers went to the gold mine when Utah authorities asked them to investigate. They found "a little patch of sagebrush with a fence around it and an old pickup," the sheriff said.

Bodrero called for better cooperation between county and state agencies investigating fraud.

Several other people who testified advocated better education of the public about fraud schemes. But University of Utah finance professor Paul Randall, said he did not agree.

"I'm not sure education would be very effective," he said. "People believe what they want to believe. It seems like it's the same people who do it again and again and again."

Other task force hearings are scheduled for Provo, July 18, City Council Chambers; Ogden, July 25, City Council Chambers; Salt Lake City, Aug. 1, City Council Chambers; Vernal, Aug. 8, courtroom, county building; and St. George, Aug. 15, City Council Chambers.

All meetings start at 7 p.m. and last until 8:30 p.m.

L.A. Post Office Cracks Mail Fraud Ring

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The U.S. Postal Service said Tuesday it cracked the largest mail fraud ring in the history of its Los Angeles division with the arrest of 13 suspects in a series of raids.

Two of those arrested on suspicion of mail fraud conspiracy were a doctor and a lawyer, said Postal investigator Tom Dugan.

The ring operated since January 1983, Dugan said, involving between 300 and 500 people in the staging of accidents or in falsely claiming to have been in accidents.

Dugan said "numerous" cases involved the placing of people in city bus accidents at which they were not present.

Ninety-five postal inspectors armed with search warrants and aided by a dozen U.S. Secret Service agents and detectives from Los Angeles and the county sheriff's department staged the raids at 12 metropolitan locations.

Pistol-grip 12-gauge shotguns were seized at three of the locations, Dugan said.

Officials said every insurance company in the country may have been victimized by the sophisticated accident fraud ring.

There Are Many Different Forms of Epilepsy

DEAR DR. LAMB — I am being treated for a seizure disorder. My first seizure was about two years ago and thus far I have had six. I take four 100-milligram Dilantin a day and three tablets of phenobarbital.

My attacks begin with a warm feeling in my ears and the palms of my hands. They become very red. I get very weak when it's over. I get cold and have tremors. The first two attacks were mild, with only the warm and weak feeling. The third attack, I had these symptoms plus I lost consciousness, had no control over my bowels and vomited. I was hospitalized. They worked on me for 10 minutes to revive me.

I had CAT scans, brain waves, a liver scan, ECG, the works, and everything was negative. Since then I have had three seizures but with the medication I get only the red-hot ears and palms and am very cold with tremors at the end.

I am 56 and a healthy person otherwise. Do you have any suggestions?

DEAR READER — Having had such a careful evaluation, it is most likely that you do have idiopathic epilepsy. That is the most common cause of epilepsy. Some people shy away from using the word epilepsy because they don't understand it. The term comes from the Greek word "epilepsia," which means "taking hold of" or "a seizing." Thus epilepsy means seizures.

There are so many causes for seizures that many authorities have preferred to call these symptoms the epilepsies, rather than implying that they all are one problem.

They can be caused by a brain tumor, brain damage from a stroke, and, a preventable cause, brain damage from automobile accidents. If you look at the various causes, you find they are usually associated with some damage or abnormal function of some brain cells. That means anyone can become a victim of epilepsy.

That is why I used the title, Epilepsy: You Can Have It, Too, for The Health Letter 10-8, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-adressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Does smokeless tobacco cause oral cancer? If it does cause mouth cancer, what are the first signs to look for? Is there any possible cure or treatment if detected early enough?

DEAR READER — Yes, tobacco increases the risk of cancer. If you hold tobacco against any of the tissues repeatedly it will cause irritation and, in some instances, the irritation may progress to cancer. The local irritation is the first sign that danger may lie ahead. The treatment is surgical. The extent of surgery depends upon the extent of the tissue damage.

Win at Bridge

Playing It Safe for Six

By Oswald Jacoby and James Jacoby

Bridge players learn early on how to take finesse. In this deal described by London bridge expert Martin Hoffman, the key to success is not to take a finesse.

The bidding was straightforward. After North's jump raise to three hearts, South showed the ace of clubs, North cue-bid the strong diamonds, and South requested partner to bid slam with a spade control. That invitation was readily accepted and it was now up to declarer to make his slam.

He won the trump lead in his hand and led the queen of spades. East won the king and returned a trump. South won the king, played ace of clubs and trumped a club, returned to his hand with a spade and ruffed another club. The ace of spades allowed him to shed his last club, but now he had to play A-K-Q of diamonds and hope that East would follow. No such luck. Down one.

How can this sad outcome be avoided? At trick two, declarer should play ace and ruff a club. Now he leads a low spade from dummy. East will rise with the king and lead another trump. South wins the king, trumps another club and returns to his hand with a spade honor to pick up trumps.

How do you know to play the hand this way, since it gives up the chance for an overtrick? You don't. But at rubber bridge, if you can safely make a slam contract against a possible four-one trump split, that is the right play. At tournament bridge, where many pairs will not reach slam, it is still right to play the safest way to make the contract.

Bromley Birthday Saturday

SPANISH FORK — Naomi Thomas Bromley, long time resident of the Spanish Fork area, will celebrate her 85th birthday Saturday.

Mrs. Bromley's children will honor her with an open house at the Spanish Fork Senior Citizen Center, 167 West Center Street, from 3-5 p.m. that day. Friends and relatives of the family are invited to attend and no gifts are requested.

Mrs. Bromley was born July 23, 1899 in Benjamin to Thomas E. and Julia Theobald Herbert. She married Francis James Thomas and they had seven children.

Their children are: Blaine A. Thomas and Fawn Reese, Spanish Fork; Boyd H. Thomas, Salem; Rex L. Thomas, California; Phyllis T. Williams, Salt Lake City; Carol Thomas and Grant J. Thomas, both deceased.

Mrs. Bromley worked for 28 years at the old Spanish Fork Hospital and prior to that worked for the U and I Sugar Company.

She will have been a member of the American Legion for 53 years in August. Her hobbies include a love of flowers.

Mrs. Bromley has 17 grandchildren, 33 great-grandchildren, four great-great-grandchildren and one brother, George Herbert, Payson.

Reunion

Saturday at Noon

Lars and Sarah May (Scott) Jacobsen Jr. Reunion will be Saturday at the GRA Park in Provo at noon. Those attending need to bring a picnic lunch. Cost is $1.50 for parking.

Families are invited to donate bazaar type gifts for auction and give away. There is a special invitation for Lars Jacobsen decents. For more information call 373-0491.

Children's Self-Esteem

Lecture July 17

Janene Wolsey Baadsgaard, author and feature writer for several Utah newspapers, will be the featured speaker Tuesday at 7 p.m. in the Orem City Center at 56 N. State. The local Young Mother's study group sponsor this monthly meeting but the public is always welcome to attend.

Mrs. Baadsgaard will be speaking on the subject, "A Sense of Wonder — Helping Your Child Discover His Own Self Worth."

An informal question and answer period will follow the talk.

Development

Screening for ### Children Today

Parents worried about possible delayed development of children up to age five may alleviate concerns or confirm problems and get advice for further assistance today and Friday at a free Developmental Screening Clinic in Provo.

The clinic is sponsored by the Regional Early Childhood Education Program at the City-County Health Dept. Office of Community Operations.

Testing is by appointment and will be scheduled all three days between 9 a.m. and noon, or 1-4 p.m. at 815 N. 800 W. For more information and to make appointments, call 373-1564.

Families Sought

For Japanese

Exchange Students

PEACE-USA, a non-profit student exchange organization needs host families for Japanese high school exchange students coming in August. These students are 15-18 years of age. They have all prepared thoroughly for their experience here. Each student is covered with insurance and will have his or her own spending money. The students will attend the local high school and stay through the school year. Host families need not have teenagers of their own, anyone with space in their heart and home can qualify. Host families are strictly voluntary, but they do receive a $50 per month tax credit. Both boys and girls slots are available. Those interested are invited to contact the Salt Lake City Area Representatives: Don and Evelyn Hall at (801) 756-3650 or PEACE-USA at 614-895-3117 or write PEACE-USA, P.O. Box 329, Westerville, Ohio 43081.

Lula Jameson Taylor Plans Birthday 102

LOA — Lula Jameson Taylor, Wayne County's oldest citizen will celebrate her 102nd birthday Saturday with an open house at her home in Loa from 2-6 p.m. All friends and family are invited.

Mrs. Taylor was born July 25, 1882 in Milford to Hyrum and Rhoda Jameson. She and her husband went by horse and buggy to the Manti Temple of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints to be married on May 8, 1901. After 58 years of marriage to Allen Taylor, he died March 30, 1959. Mrs. Taylor continues to reside in the family home and is still able to do many things for herself. A son, Arvel, checks on her needs and at least one of her children is with her all the time.

Her children will honor her with a family dinner Friday.

She is the mother of 14 children, nine of them are still living. They are: Lawrence Taylor, Pasadena, California; Laura Malmstrom, Provo; Afton Taylor, Loa; Arvel Taylor, Richfield; Mildred Beardall, Orem; Richard Taylor, Payson; Stanley Taylor and Lowell Taylor, Orem, and Winona Peterson, Centerville. Her poster-

"I worked hard all my life," she said. "I walked to the post office and back home, a distance of two miles every day. Sitting and doing nothing would be terrible."

Mrs. Taylor recalls making most of the clothing for her 14 children.

ity numbers between 250 and 300.

Mrs. Taylor says perhaps one thing which has contributed to her longevity and continued good health is exercise.

four younger brothers and sisters to outfit with clothing.

"We bought flour sacks, which I bleached, and made into underwear, petticoats, nightgowns and shirts," she said.

She said that she made clothes for all her children and when the flour sacks gave out, she took the back of overall legs and made little britches for the younger boys.

She has made dozens of quilts, including 24 since she broke her arm six years ago. She claims that diet could be a factor in her health, even though there weren't a lot of green vegetables.

"We had plenty of potatoes, gravy and meat, especially deer meat," she said. In addition, she raised her own pigs and sheep.

She has been active in the LDS Church, having taught for more than 50 years in Relief Society.

U.V. Computer Seminar

The Utah Valley Computer Society, a users' group for Commodore 64 and Vic 20 personal home computer enthusiasts, will meet at the Orem Library Media Center Saturday at 10 a.m.

According to vice-president Richard T. Powers, the purpose of the club is to help each member learn about his computer and enjoy it to the fullest. For further information, contact Powers at 785-5467 in Pleasant Grove.

Byron Loveil

SALT LAKE CITY — Byron Loveil has been named President of the Fleming Foods Salt Lake City Division. Loveil is a 13 year veteran of the Fleming Foods Company and has served most recently as Controller-Western Region.

Loveil is a Utah native and alumnus of Brigham Young University where he obtained his business degree in 1970.

Zions Bank

Two Utah Valley men have been promoted at Zions First National Bank, according to Roy W. Simmons, chairman of the board.

Davis J. Hutton has been named manager of the University office in Provo and Richard J. Sorensen has been named loan officer in the Spanish Fork office.

Hutton joined Zions Bank in 1971 as a loan adjuster in the Provo Region office and subsequently worked as loan officer and installment loans manager.

Richard Sorensen

David Hutton

Just prior to his new appointment, he was assistant manager in the University office.

Hutton attended Granger High School in Salt Lake City and earned a B.S. degree from Brigham Young University. He is a member of the Sertoma Club of Orem.

Richfield High School graduate Richard J. Sorensen joined Zions Bank in 1980 after earning a B.S. degree in business management from Brigham Young University.

He previously served the bank as loan adjuster in the Provo Region and Utah National offices and loan interviewer in the Utah National and Spanish Fork offices.

Newcastle Financial Group

Eight key executives from Newcastle Financial Group were featured speakers at the Million Dollar Round Table annual meeting in New York City recently.

The Newcastle Group was engaged to explain to the insurance industry the full professional aspects of financial planning.

Newcastle Financial Group consists of specialists from the fields of finance, economics, investments, insurance, securities and tax strategies. Their team includes tax attorneys, CPAs, CLUs, Certified Financial Planners, Pension Consultants and Registered Investment Advisors.

Representing Newcastle, a Utah firm with other offices throughout the country, were Henry Whiffen and B. Ray Anderson, co-owners, Jay Poelman, Executive Vice President, James Fitch, Blair Whiting, Richard Greene, and Paul Holt, Vice Presidents, and Harold Smith, one of their financial consultants.

Suntan Maker

The Suntan Maker has opened at 25 North Main in Springville. The business is just what the name implies, a way to tan without the sun using the patented Wolff Tanning System.

Staff Lease Concept Popular

Many small businessmen are firing all their employees these days, only to have them instantly rehired by what is called a staff leasing company. The company assumes the paperwork and the payroll and leaves the operation of the business up to the owner.

Staff leasing appeals to small and medium-sized firms whose owners want to be freed of the hassles of bookkeeping and taxes and want to take advantage of the new tax shelters available for those who have only themselves as employee.

This radical concept in personnel management was made possible by the Tax Equity and Fiscal Responsibility Act (TEFRA), effective Jan. 1, 1984. It provides for the legal existence of staff leasing corporations, as long as the corporation gives a 7.5 percent pension plan to all employees and makes the plan effective immediately. In turn, the businessman who has turned his employees over to a staff leasing firm can award himself benefits which he could not afford to provide for all his employees.

The staff leasing corporation can also afford to offer good benefits, because it has the purchasing power that small businessmen do not have. "It's a win-win situation," says John Mohlman, President of Staff Leasing of America, a Nevada-based corporation with an office in Orem. "Professionals have their tax break, and employee leasing companies can provide benefits like those offered by large corporations because they are purchasing benefits for hundreds of employees."

Jeanette Mohlman, senior account executive of Staff Leasing said, "In a free enterprise system, the people who take the risks should be able to realize the benefits."

A doctor who invests six or eight years of time and money in his career, plus the added expense of starting a practice, should be able to award himself more benefits than his secretary. That goes for just about any small businessman, she said.

Besides the advantages to employees and businessmen, Mrs. Mohlman said the U.S. Government is very happy about the idea, because it serves two important functions. It eases the burden on the ailing Social Security System by getting employees involved in an independent pension plan. And the more long-term security plans in force, the more stable the economy.

Mrs. Mohlman said people in the area have been interested in the idea and the number of businesses who use staff leasing will continue to gain popularity.

Worry Over Kids Takes Energy, Time

Erma Bombeck

It was one of those days that a mother dreams about.

It was Saturday and I could sleep until I got a headache. The kids were grown and on their own. Nothing in the house leaked oil, dripped water, smoked when you plugged it in, made a funny sound or had a light burnt out. There were no deadlines and the big insurance premium was paid. I didn't have a thing in the world to worry about. Then the phone rang.

It was one of my kids telling me she was driving to Vegas and not to worry. NOT TO WORRY! Now I had to devote at least five hours to wondering if the car would break down, or if some crazy would cross the center line and run her off the road.

Suppose someone ripped off her credit cards and money. Five hours out of a perfectly good day sitting around waiting for a police officer to call and say, "I have someone here who wants to talk to you. Speak up. She's in traction." Five hours of unrelenting fear. Would she reach over to change stations on the radio and hit a horse that ran out in front of the car? Would she drop into a roadside place for a hamburger and be dragged out on the road by a motorcycle gang who did wheelies around her? Would a sheriff running for governor pick her up for alleged speeding and accuse her of a crime for which he needed a suspect because he needed national press coverage?

When the phone rang again, it was another child who informed me he was going fishing in a rubber raft in the ocean.

"I hope you're not considering going this weekend," I said. "I'm already half crazy worrying about your sister driving to Vegas which means at least five hours of misery and mental anguish."

"We're only going to be out for about four hours."

I was going to wash my hair, but what's a mother to do? I canceled that in case a Russian submarine surfaced just under their boat and dumped them into the Pacific. Or what if they caught a fish so gigantic it pulled their boat out into the open sea? Of course, there was always a strong possibility of Jaws III coming to the beach for the summer, or a tidal wave they didn't hear about because a rock station didn't carry the news.

By my calculations, I had 10 or 12 hours of worry ahead of me when I heard from my third child. "Don't tell me," I said. "You're climbing Mt. Everest in tennis shoes just to punish your mother."

"Actually," he said, "I'm staying home this weekend."

I couldn't believe his insensitivity. Now I had to worry that he had no friends or social life. Unable to relate to anyone, he would become more withdrawn and finally trust no one. Eventually, he would pull his blinds and eat out of a saucepan on the stove. I would never go to his wedding where everyone said, "She looks too young to be his mother." I would never be his grandchildren on my knee where people would say, "She looks too young to have grandchildren."

What are they trying to do to me?

Girl of the Golden East Needs a Corner on Her Yacht

By RENEE C. NELSON
Herald Today Editor

It's hard for ordinary people to identify with the mega-rich and powerful.

But we all have our problems.

Take the Khashoggis — the Saudi Arabian family headed by brothers Essam and Adnan Khashoggi. Their Utah interests, only a small part of their international business activities, include the Triad Center and the International Center in Salt Lake City, and a half interest in the Utah Jazz.

From all media accounts, the Khashoggis, like most Utah families, are close-knit. "My family comes first," says Adnan, a Saudi-Arabian arms dealer.

His daughter Nabila is frequently in the news, and is currently on the cover of Town & Country Magazine. The 22-year-old heiress is not a member of the idle rich — just rich.

She was educated in England and Switzerland, tutored in business administration and marketing and trained at a London ad agency and Beirut bank.

She now is president of the Triad Commercial Corporation, is director of the philanthropic Khashoggi Foundation, and a partner in Infolex, a computerized advertising firm.

Like most women, Nabila likes to pamper herself.

Aboard her yacht — of the same name — she seeks luxury and comfort. And mostly she gets it on this stainless steel vessel that makes Cleopatra's barge look like a dinghy.

The 270-ft. 3,500-ton yacht boasts satellite and navigation systems that rival those of a destroyer. It is staffed by a crew of 40, and even carries along two 30-ft. Riva speedboats and its own helicopter.

It's easy living by anyone's standards.

Dining is a happening. There is room for more than 65 guests in the circular dining saloon and in other dining areas where they eat with vermeil flatware the gourmet concoctions prepared by three chefs — Arabian, French and Chinese.

A guest who wants to call his Wall Street broker need not wait until the yacht makes port either. He can pick up one of the 296 telephones aboard.

Entertainment includes a discotheque and a cinema with an 800-film library. If live performance is on the agenda there is the exquisite mirrored piano that Liberace gave to Nabila's stepmother.

And then there are the quarters — sleeping quarters. Many are in a circular design and include 11 suites named for precious stones, one of which is Nabila's — the Ruby Suite.

So what could be lacking in such a facility?

"I don't have enough closet space," the Arab heiress explains.

This is where the common identity comes in.

It doesn't matter how big the house or how few occupants inhabit it, most women have the same problem — not enough closet space.

If the house is small, the excuse for storing things under the bed is "not enough closet space."

If the house is large, the excuse is "because it's handy and the kids won't know where I've put things."

Closets are at a premium on any premise, and most women would give up a corner of the bedroom for a bigger closet.

Ann Landers

Accountant May Sue His Boss For Harrassment on the Job

Dear Ann Landers: I am 27, a certified public accountant (male) and feel that I am doing an excellent job in this office. Ever since it became known that my wife has filed for divorce I have been getting the heavy come-on from my immediate superior. She is 32, attractive, highly competent, but not my type.

I have tried to be tactful about letting her know I am not interested. But she's a persistent and cunning lady. My latest assignment requires that we travel together to several meetings.

Last night after a few drinks on the plane, she laid it on the line. I told her I was interested in another woman, thinking that would cool it. I was wrong.

She made it plain that if I didn't play ball I'd be transferred to another department. (Less responsibility and a cut in pay.) She is going on a vacation tomorrow and I have only 17 days to think it over.

A lawyer pal of mine says I should sue this woman for sexual harassment. I've never sued anyone in my life.

Furthermore I'd feel like a heel. But I'm sure she will demote me if I don't knuckle under. Then I'd have to leave.

Please tell me what you know about sexual harassment. — Trapped In N.Y.

Dear N.Y.: The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission, a federal agency charged with enforcing Title VII, defined sexual harassment in 1980.

The guidelines are as follows: "Unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal and physical conduct of a sexual nature, constitute sexual harassment when 1) submission to such conduct is made a term or a condition of an individual's employment, 2) submission to or rejection of such conduct is used as the basis for employment decisions, and 3) such conduct interferes with work performance or otherwise creates an intimidating, hostile or offensive working environment."

Sexual harassment is difficult to prove because there are seldom witnesses.

If you are, however, inclined to be gutsy and are willing to suffer through some trying times, go for it. You might strike a blow for the independent male and discourage other women from doing this number.

Dear Ann Landers: You goofed. I am a strong advocate of breast-feeding and did it for all my children, but always in the privacy of my home — never in a restaurant, which you seem to think is OK.

If my husband is going to view a breast I want it to be mine. — Well-Endowed In Tampa

Dear Endowed: You missed the point. I, too, am a strong advocate of breast-feeding but I'm sure with very little effort it can be done discreetly so nothing shows. A blanket well-positioned will do the job nicely.

Mary Lou Gallagher and father, Bernard, talk of anorexia.

Anorexics Explain New Treatment

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
UPI Health Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mary Lou Gallagher, tanned and beautifully blonde, broke down Tuesday standing before reporters and television crews, recounting her battle with anorexia nervosa.

"I was 96 pounds and at 5-feet-9, I was dying," the 26-year-old said between sobs, describing the condition she was in five weeks ago and had been in for more than a year.

A friend starved to death as a result of anorexia two years ago. "I knew what was in store," she said.

Miss Gallagher, a resident of the Philadelphia suburb of Wynne-wood, Pa., had been admitted to a hospital where doctors tried giving her nutrients via a pump implanted near her collar bone.

But because her pulse was 37 and her heart weak, doctors in the coronary care unit wouldn't do it. She was sent home.

At the height of her anorexia she was exercising five to six hours a day and would get up in the middle of the night to exercise so she would not put on weight. She was eating plates of lettuce — "no more than 200 calories a day."

Miss Gallagher now weighs 114 pounds. She had waffles layered with syrup and butter for breakfast and was planning a big lunch and dinner.

Dr. James M. Parsons, a Melbourne, Fla., psychiatrist, who hired a public relations agency to set up the meeting, said he wanted to let people know he is on the trail to a successful treatment for anorexia nervosa.

Using the press conference route for a medical report instead of a medical forum — such as a scientific meeting or medical journal — to report to other doctors made the press conference unusual.

Parsons said with more than 1 million anorexics, including those dying of starvation, he felt the press forum was a good way to get word around swiftly.

He said he would share medical information on the treatment with any doctors who asked for it and that there is nothing secret about any of it.

He said it consists of giving patients drugs that lower high levels of cortisol found in anorexics. He said cortisol is an adrenal reserve the body relies on to power it through high-stress situations.

"When a woman deprives herself of nutrients over a period of time, her body eventually opens the cortisol spigot, providing her with an artificial infusion of energy," he said.

"On a short-term basis, cortisol can be a life-saver; on the other hand, a long-term flow of cortisol can have lethal effects on the body."

Parsons said some 30 patients have been treated at his Alpha Medical Center in the last 18 months and that improvements were seen in appetite and weight gain. He said some patients go off the cortisol-lowering drugs when their weight stabilizes.

Malnutrition Causes Death Of Grizzly

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo. (UPI) — A grizzly bear cub marooned with its mother and two siblings on an island in Yellowstone Lake apparently died of malnutrition, Yellowstone National Park officials said.

Park rangers removed the bears from the island some weeks ago but the cub apparently was not able to recover from severe malnourishment, park spokeswoman Amy Vanderbilt said.

She said the cub at its age should have weighed between 35 and 40 pounds but weighed only 10 pounds when it was taken off the island.

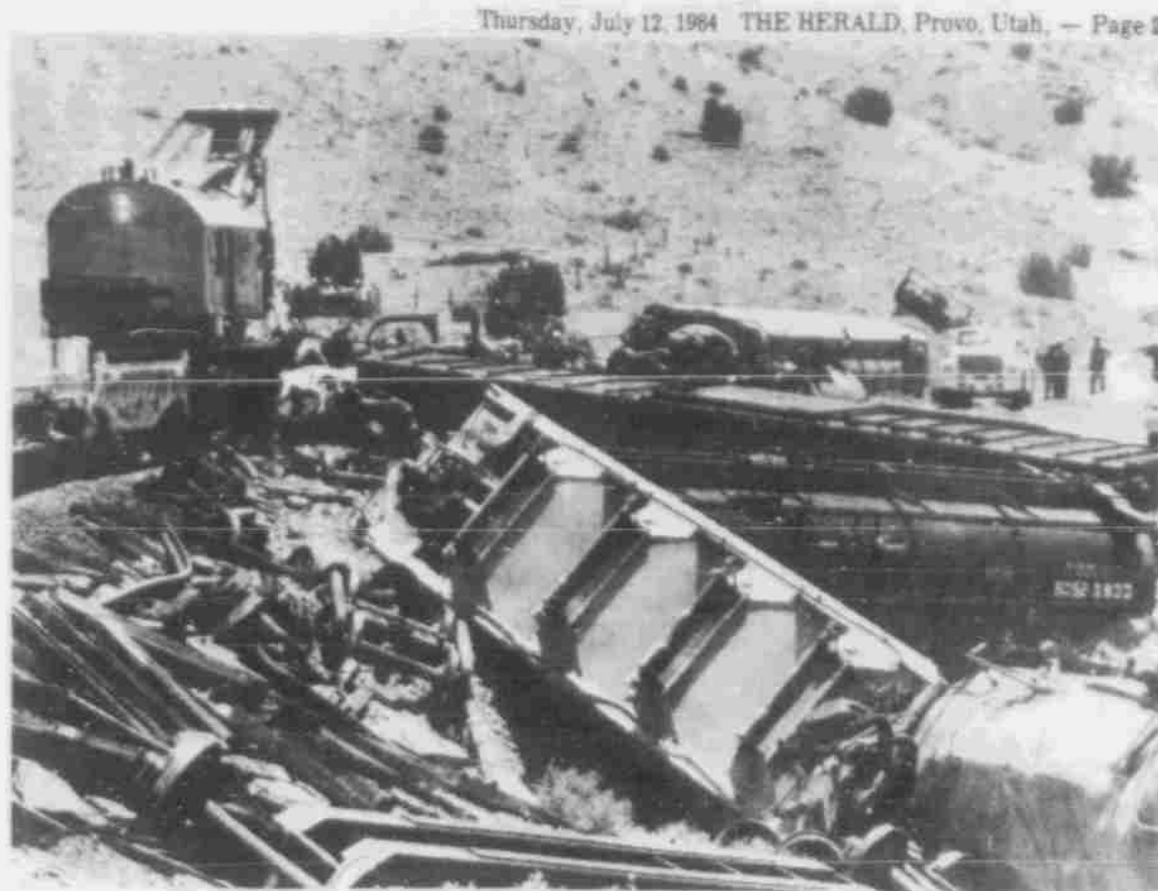

Ms. Vanderbilt said the grizzly sow and her three cubs apparently wandered onto Frank Island when ice covered the lake, and became stranded when the ice bridge melted in the spring.

The island had a "limited source of food," Ms. Vanderbilt said.

Rangers in late spring discovered the bears on routine patrol and relocated the animals — all of them malnourished — to a back country area with good feeding.

Ms. Vanderbilt said the sow, which should have weighed 250 pounds this time of year, weighed about 150 pounds when she was moved off the island, while her other two cubs weighed under 20 pounds each.

The third cub was found dead by rangers in the relocation area last week, but Ms. Vanderbilt said the rangers have not spotted the sow and the two surviving cubs and said that was "a good sign" they are recovering.

Workmen Clean Up Railroad Wreckage

Wreckage of a Santa Fe Railroad train derailed near Belen, N.M., is cleaned up by workmen. Fourteen cars jumped the track, including 11 tankers, but fortunately no one was injured. One of the tankers containing a highly flammable chemical called cyclohexanone sprung a major leak, but officials said there was no environmental damage.

Army Finally Awards Medal

ROUND ROCK, Texas (UPI) — Raul Garivay isn't bitter the Army waited 40 years to award him a Bronze Star for his service during World War II.

Garivay, 60, says receiving the medal Monday means more to him than if he had gotten it right after the war. He was honored for valor during fighting in France and Germany in 1944.

"When you're young, you don't even think about war and dying," he said. "I just wanted to get home after the war. I hardly ever thought about what I did."

Garivay, a native of San Angelo, was captured by the Germans in November 1944 near the town of Schmidt, Germany, and was freed by Russian troops about six months later.

Army officials said Garivay's capture helped explain why it took so long for him to receive his medal. The paperwork for the Bronze Star was lost in the shuffle because Garivay never rejoined his unit and was discharged at the war's end.

The Army said Garivay was eligible for the medal because he served in combat more than 30 straight days.

Brzezinski Says Arms Control at Road's End

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski says U.S.-Soviet arms control may have come to "the end of the road" and predicts renewed interest by war planners in launching a first nuclear strike.

"The time has come to lay to rest the expectation that arms control is the secret key to a more amicable American-Soviet relationship or even to the enhancement of mutual security," he wrote in an article published in the Wall Street Journal Tuesday.

"I think he's dead wrong," an administration official said Tuesday. "I honestly think there will be a window of opportunity for arms control" once the Soviet power structure jells following the deaths of Leonid Brezhnev and Yuri Andropov.

The current Soviet leader, Konstantin Chernenko, is said to be ill.

The article appeared as the Soviet Union and the United States jockeyed over whether to begin negotiations on banning weapons from space, as proposed by Moscow, in Vienna in September.

Brzezinski concluded the only way to offset "the stalemate in arms control" is for the superpowers to put greater reliance on "defensive strategic systems" of the type envisioned by President Reagan's "Star Wars" anti-missile project — which had its roots in research begun 10 years ago.

He argued that acquisition by Moscow and Washington of a strategic defensive capability will lead to a gradual decline in the vulnerability of each side to a first strike.

The thrust of Brzezinski's argument focused on rapid technological advances in missilery that outpaces arms control negotiations, makes verification of arms control agreements virtually impossible and allows war planners to envisage a first strike to wipe out command and control facilities without devastating cities.

"It is quite possible that arms control as we have known it has come to the end of the road," he wrote. "Comprehensive arms control ... is likely to be the victim of the bloody-mindedness of the present Soviet leadership and of the dynamics of the technological revolution."

Technologically, missile guidance systems have advanced to the point at which the nuclear-armed Pershing 2 medium-range missile now being deployed in Western Europe and aimed at Soviet soil can hit its target within 100 feet.

Further, it is nearly impossible to verify without on-site inspection whether the newly deployed jet-powered cruise missiles carry conventional or nuclear warheads.

"The verification problem is becoming increasingly acute, given the mobility of the new systems and the opportunities for rapid reloading and covert deployment," Brzezinski wrote.

"It is realistic to conclude that for both political and technological reasons, the chances of a truly comprehensive agreement, which can be reliably verified, are rapidly fading," he wrote. "In that context, we are likely to see renewed attraction to war planners of a first-strike scenario."

The advent of increasingly numerous and accurate systems is making it possible for planners of a strategic attack to envisage a first strike that leaves the opponent strategically crippled, capable of only a spasmodic, disorganized and strategically aimless response — or none at all.

Indian Rebels' Independence Cost Them Backing

WASHINGTON — The Central Intelligence Agency has a unique capacity to rise up and create a fiasco. A decade ago, it recruited some obscure tribesmen to fight its covert battles in Laos and Iraq, then abandoned them to be slaughtered. Now a similar catastrophe is in the making in Nicaragua.

In an earlier column, I told how the CIA armed the Creoles and Indians in Nicaragua, provoked them to attack the Sandinista regime, then cut off their supplies. They will soon be without weapons to defend themselves against a remorseless enemy.

My roving reporter, Jon Lee Anderson, is now traveling with the MISURA guerrillas — a coalition of Miskito, Suma and Rama Indians — along Nicaragua's swampy Atlantic coast. He reports that their situation is critical.

Their leader is Steadman Fagoth, a small, wiry man, with curly black hair that tumbles over a bald spot. He yearns for the quiet, contemplative life of the marine biologist he studied to be. Yet he is a tough guerrilla chief, and his manner conveys authority.

"The gringos have cut off all their aid to us," he told my reporter in Spanish. "They say it's because they don't have any more money, but I think it's because we're 'naughty children.'"

Fagoth meant that the Indians have resisted the CIA's efforts to force them into what he considers an unholy alliance with the contras, who are led by former officers of the late dictator Anastasio Somoza's hated national guard.

Fagoth also believes the CIA aid ought to be out in the open. "Everyone knows about it and who it's for, so why call it covert?" he demanded. "I will ask for it to be sent directly to us from Congress. I want to see American C-130s unloading our supplies in the open. As long as it's covert, it allows corrupt middlemen to fill their pockets."

Fagoth said his forces had received arms from the CIA, plus a monthly allotment of $80,000 to pay for food, clothing, fuel for their boats and other expenses. "It was never enough money," he said.

Last month, the CIA sent them nothing at all and informed them that no more aid would be available. The 30-year-old Indian leader thinks his determination to remain independent of CIA control is what caused the cut-off.

"The CIA has wanted to be the owner of the anti-Sandinista movement," he said. "They are wrong if they think they can buy our movement with their money."

The CIA's malign neglect could pass an invisible sentence upon the Indians. If agency officials had pondered their decision with a little intelligence and compassion, they would realize that the cost will be high in Indian lives. The Sandinistas have already started to herd the Indians into "relocation camps" and to wipe out any who resist. "We'll put up our blood," said Fagoth, "but the gringos must put up the cash."

Footnote: A year ago, my reporter Jon Lee Anderson made a foray into Nicaragua with the Indians. They complained bitterly to him that both the Honduran army and the CIA's Somoza-tainted guerrillas were taking a cut of their supplies. I reported this in my column and it caused some unpleasant repercussions. When the MISURA commanders returned to Honduras, they were thrown in jail for having talked to my reporter, and Honduran authorities tried to run the Indians out of the country. But the publicity caused the CIA to make sure the MISURA forces got their supplies, which have now been abruptly cut off.

Ex-Patrolman Comments

(Editor's Note: This editorial originally was published in the Southern Utah Spectrum).

By JOSEPH B. HALTERMAN
SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. — As a retired law enforcement officer and resident of the city-county of San Bernardino, Calif., for many years, I should like to comment on the recent conviction, in federal court, of the (former) California Highway Patrolman, George Michael Gwaltney.

I maintain memberships in various organizations related to law enforcement and that includes a position on the board of directors of the San Bernardino County Peace Officer's Association, a position I have held for several years.

This background provides me with the opportunity of meeting regularly with officers from various agencies where matters of interest are discussed. Such is the case in the Gwaltney matter.

In my conversations with officers regarding the case, not one has expressed the opinion that Gwaltney was innocent. The comments I will make are my own but these views are shared by many officers.

The arrest and conviction of Gwaltney is an embarrassment to all law enforcement. Corruption in law enforcement in the State of California "as a way of life" is not tolerated. When it is discovered and exposed, it is dealt with harshly as many ex-officers would testify.

The outcome of the two trials in San Bernardino County Superior Court was disappointing and discouraging. The evidence against Gwaltney was very strong and should have sustained a murder conviction.

The San Bernardino County Sheriff's investigators and the prosecutor in the case, Assistant District Attorney Betty Kennedy, are all capable professionals. The prosecution's case was weakened considerably by adverse (questionable) court rulings.

The trial judges are honest, honorable men who are bound by certain rules of evidence but who often, in a close call, favor the defendant in a ruling which otherwise (might) result in a reversal by a higher court, something judges understandably do not enjoy.

The defense position that Gwaltney's service revolver was stolen, used by another person to commit the crime and then "planted" inside Gwaltney's (locked) pickup minus its barrel, the most incriminating piece of evidence which could be discovered, in an effort to incriminate Gwaltney, was ludicrous.

When the issue of Gwaltney's character was raised by the defense and a parade of witnesses took the stand in behalf of Gwaltney, judicial fairness should have allowed the prosecution to present its rebuttal witnesses. Some of these vital witnesses were not allowed to testify.

It was encouraging to learn, soon after the trial, that the FBI had entered the case and the resources of the federal government would be utilized in a further investigation.

The investigation performed by the FBI agents and the scientific preparation of the evidence collected for the federal case were impressive, effective and served the interest of justice. We are thankful and grateful for their participation.

To those who continue to travel the California highways: Continue to do so without fear.

The California Highway Patrol remains one of the finest and most professional law enforcement agencies in the world. In the history of the CHP, millions and millions of vehicle stops have been accomplished by its officers. In one instance, a citizen was stopped and that citizen's death resulted because of the criminal conduct of one CHP officer who initiated and completed this most heinous act under the color of authority, a most despicable deed.

However, during these same years, many CHP officers have been killed by occupants of vehicles they have stopped, demonstrating that it is much more hazardous to be a CHP officer making a stop.

Will Bill Really Cut Deficit?

Without much fanfare, Congress recently gave final approval to a package of spending cuts and tax increases that would reduce the federal budget deficit by $63 billion over four years.

Surprising?

Not when one considers that this "down-payment" includes $50 billion in tax increases and a mere $13 billion in government spending cuts.

Most of the tax increases are contained in a host of provisions designed to shut down a wide range of tax loopholes and shelters.

The largest spending reductions were made in Medicare. The legislation calls for increased out-of-pocket costs for beneficiaries as well as a 15-month freeze on physician fees reimbursed by Medicare.

But, according to U.S. Sen. Alfonse M. D'Amato, R-N.Y., most of the spending cuts in the package are "illusory." He said the bill represents the same formula of raising taxes and a total lack of spending curtailment.

U.S. Sen. Howard M. Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, complained that the package "panders to the special interests, swells the deficit (via a number of tax breaks) and increases the tax bills of working people."

An example of this is a change in business tax breaks for equipment, such as home computers, boats and airplanes, that is used for business 50 percent or less of the time. Taxpayers would be required to keep a detailed log of business use of such equipment, including automobiles. In addition, use of such property would have to be a requirement of employment, not a convenience for the employee, to qualify for the deduction.

Large businesses will have little trouble meeting this requirement. It will, however, place such a paperwork burden upon the small businessman and his employees that most will not bother applying for the deduction.

It is admirable that our legislators are attempting to reduce the federal deficit. However, the nation's overall interests would be better served if they would sharpen their knives and trim spending rather than adding to our tax burden.

Convention Offers Campaign Clues

As you watch the Democratic National Convention unfold from July 16 to 19, what should you look for? What is politically important and what is just pomp and circumstance or carefully planned hoopla?

There hasn't been a really open and undecided convention since the Republicans nominated Eisenhower in 1952 or perhaps, some would argue, since the 1960 Democratic convention which nominated John Kennedy.

If this year's Democratic convention were going to be closely contested, with the outcome unknown at the start, then obviously the most important thing to watch for would be sudden or unexpected switches by delegates from one camp to another. But while the television networks will play up any such switches that might occur in San Francisco, the contest has ended. This is going to be Walter Mondale's convention.

Thus the most important thing to look for is how he runs this convention.

The Mondale camp had planned a quick-kill primary strategy which they hoped would have wrapped up the nomination for the former vice president by late March. Then he could have spent the rest of the primary season, with all its free publicity and television time, running against Ronald Reagan.

But with Gary Hart holding on through the final contests, Mondale was denied this. Instead, while he went from state to state, fighting off Hart and looking for all the world like the harried politician on the stump, Ronald Reagan was able to tour the world looking presidential.

Mondale must get his campaign on track in San Francisco. He must begin looking and sounding presidential because, if there is one thing that the public opinion polls have shown continually, it is that, although we usually elect politicians as president, we do not like presidents to look and sound like politicians.

Thus Mondale must begin to project a certain image in San Francisco, that of a leader, firmly in charge, with a united party behind him.

The Democratic Party by definition is diverse and its conventions abound in spontaneity. That makes for good television and good newspaper copy. But there must be limits.

The convention must not be allowed to break down in fractious wrangling with long and bitter floor fights over minor issues. The convention business day is set to run from 4 p.m. to about 8 p.m., San Francisco time — prime time in the East and Midwest. Few can forget past times when Democratic nominees made their acceptance speeches at 2 a.m. The Democrats cannot allow this to happen in San Francisco.

If Walter Mondale comes out of this convention looking not like a potential president but rather like a victorious politician, his campaign will already be in trouble.

Day by day, here are the important things to look for:

DAY 1: The only really important event in this largely ceremonial session is the keynote speech by New York Gov. Mario Cuomo. He has a reputation for eloquence and will try to establish a tone for the convention. His speech will probably focus on his favorite issue: government as protector of the family and traditional values. If he succeeds in the speech he may take the "family" issue away from the Republicans. Cuomo also may boost his already high standing in the party as someone to watch closely for 1988.

Robert

The other significant piece of business on Monday is the acceptance of the Credential Committee's report. This should be pro forma. If it isn't, and if some sort of delegate challenge is made by supporters of Jesse Jackson, it could signal a raucous convention and long-term trouble for Mondale.

DAY 2: The business of this session is the acceptance of the Platform Committee and Rules Committee's reports. Normally deadly dull business of interest only to party leaders and political junkies, this could well be the most significant night of this year's Democratic convention.

Of most importance is the Rules Committee report. The convention has the option of enacting binding rules governing future nominating procedures. A broad segment of the party, led by Jackson and including a sizable element of grass-roots party members, want to change the method by which delegates are allotted as a result of primaries. They favor eliminating or lowering the so-called "threshold" that a candidate has to achieve in each congressional district before he or she can receive any delegates. If the threshold is eliminated or lowered much below its present 15 percent to 20 percent level, the 1988 primary season could be wild.

The Jackson forces also want to eliminate dual primaries which provide for a second or run-off primary between the two top vote-getters, if no candidate receives a majority of votes in the initial primary. The practice is especially prevalent in the South, which is vital to the Democrats this year.

If the convention does away with dual primaries, which it has the power to do, a lot of white Southern Democrats will probably sit on their hands in November.

As for the platform report, the party leaders hope that, behind closed doors, they have headed off all floor battles over the platform. If they don't, and a platform battle breaks out, especially one that resembles the 17-hour blood bath in 1980, it will signal big problems for Mondale because it will show that he does not have firm control over his own party.

DAY 3: Presidential nomination day. The important thing for Mondale is that the nominating process run smoothly and quickly. A key is whether, once Mondale has enough votes for the nomination, Jackson and Hart go to the podium to move Mondale's nomination by acclamation. If they don't, it could signal that problems lie ahead.

DAY 4: Vice presidential nomination and acceptance speeches.

Congressional Quarterly

Reagan Scores Court Victories

By ELDER WITT
Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — No matter what happens in November, President Reagan already has won big this year.

In a set of major rulings, the U.S. Supreme Court has given its stamp of approval to the administration's proposals for significant policy changes in civil rights, business and criminal law.

The string of victories marks a dramatic comeback for the White House. During Reagan's first three years in office, the high court repeatedly rebuffed administration pleas for revisions in the court's position on matters ranging from abortion and busing to tax policy.

But during the term that began last Oct. 3, the court found the arguments of Solicitor General Rex E. Lee, the administration's representative before the court, considerably more persuasive. The president could count on six justices supporting his call for change — Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, Justices Byron R. White, Harry

A. Blackmun, Lewis F. Powell Jr., William H. Rehnquist and Sandra Day O'Connor.

The support of White and Blackmun was critical to the administration's success. White emerged last term as the court's man in the middle, able to create a majority of either the conservative foursome of Burger, Powell, Rehnquist and O'Connor or a liberal quartet that consisted of Blackmun, William J. Brennan Jr., Thurgood Marshall and John Paul Stevens.

This year, Reagan's victories came by votes of 6-3 and 5-4. On the major policy-shift cases, White voted for the president's view virtually every time. Blackmun, pulling away from his new-found liberal allies, particularly on questions of criminal law, agreed with the administration almost as often as White.

Reagan's success is due in part to the administration's choice of issues on which to take a position. Last term's major setbacks came on abortion, tax exemptions for discriminatory private schools, and an attempt to rescind automobile seat-belt and air-bag regulations.

In all three cases the solicitor general asked the court to approve major changes in long-settled areas of law and public policy, changes sought — in the first two cases primarily by conservative activists.

This year, the administration endorsed positions supported by a broader constituency in the nation at large. Contending that the primary goal of Warren court decisions separating church and state or guaranteeing fair treatment for criminal suspects had been attained, the solicitor general could argue that lower courts were taking the precedents one step too far — a trend the Supreme Court should halt.

Voluntarily joining pending cases as a "friend of the court," Lee successfully urged the justices to permit more use of religious symbols in public displays, to curtail the reach of affirmative action, to approve new exceptions to the controversial exclusionary rule that bars use in criminal cases of illegally obtained evidence.

In the two major policy-change cases in which the government was itself a party, administration attorneys skillfully tailored their arguments to the court's inclination to take a liberal, restrictive view on questions of statutory law.

The justices approved a narrow view of key sections of the Clean Air Act and of Title IX of the 1972 Education Amendments, the ban on discrimination by federally funded education programs. In so doing, the court contributed to the Reagan administration's goal of easing the burden of federal regulation on American life.

Reagan had a majority of the justices share a belief that the role of the federal judiciary is a limited one — that the judges have no business making policy, but should defer to the judgment of Congress and the executive branch unless a constitutional breach of clear abuse of administrative discretion is involved.

Only Macho Men Own Trucks

While purchasing a pickup truck the other day, I entered the real man's world.

So what if it's 11 years old. It's a truck. In this valley you aren't a man until you have a truck. For some reason, fathering children, holding down a full-time job, or fighting in wars don't count. You need a truck.

I never fought in a war. But I did yell at another driver once on State Street.

But now there is a truck in the driveway, and the world looks a lot more macho. Even if it leaks oil on the cement, the neighbors all comment on the truck.

They superficially say things, like "You'll like the truck," and "How could you do without it?" But what they really mean to say is, "What a man!"

Nobody said anything when we got our Japanese sedan, but bring a leaky decade-old GMC three-quarter ton home, and it's like Christmas on parade.

Maybe they want to borrow it. One neighbor offered me $2 if I'd drive him and his garbage to the dump. Helping him was the manly thing to do.

They are real men. Newspaper people, politicians, carpenters, Brigham Young University professors and even psychiatrists drive trucks.

It's not clear how this manhood-truck thing works, but it does. Next time you drive a busy street in Utah Valley, notice people driving trucks. Particularly us men.

We may not all have the Tom Selleck-Winston commercial look. And some may appear to have IQs of cabbage, but we are bonafide guys.

Since joining the army of truck owners, I've gleaned great things about our select fraternity. Here are a few plums for prospective converts:

We truck owners sit an average of 16 centimeters higher from the road than car drivers.

So, when pulling away from a stop light, our gaze sideways across the lane is down.

This is great for passing Corvettes with their bodies-by-Fisher. The Vettes give 10 centimeters away to Volkswagens.

As opposed to a car, when you look through the rear window in the act of cutting someone off while changing lanes, you don't mess with distance through a back seat.

Through July 7 through 9, Orem Police reported 10 accidents involving pickup trucks. All were male drivers except two. Involved were five Chevrolts, three Fords, one GMC and two Dodges. Regardless of what the police or witness say, none of the men was at fault.

Accessories are big. They help boost virility.

Big tires with mag wheels are nice. Abandoning the stock rims and hubs for spoked wheels with bloated treads is like throwing away the electric razor and taking up a switch razor and suds cup.

Adding a trailer hitch ball helps. Even if you don't own a camper trailer, a boat or motorcycle flat bed rig, putting on a hitch ball makes people on the road think you do. It's an ornament like hair on the chest.

Big antennas (two are better than one), fog lights and gun racks in the back window do wonders for the male image.

I've seen some nice hunting rifles and even big bows and quivers hung on back window racks. Especially in October, deer hunt month.

For me, a gun rack is next on the list, after a good fill up. I don't have a rifle, but I may lay a golf club on the rack. The Lynx five-wood would look great.

Dogs are not necessarily an accessory. But putting one in the back is a novel man thing to do. Do not get a runt, the kind that yelps at salesmen while hiding behind a screen door. Get a big animal, the kind that runs in the yard at full thundering gait, teeth bared, rattling heavy gauge chain, the kind that melts underwear.

Dick Harmon

If you're a whimpy guy, let one of these brutes roam in the back. You'll feel more macho. I don't like dogs. My only experience has been bad, and regularly it's on my lawn in the morning.

Don't get a camper shell. To be a man, you've got to leave the back open. Getting a camper shell turns a good truck into a station wagon. If you worry about Utah's new seat belt law for kids and have too many to fit in the cab, you can do wonders in the back bed with a few ropes or stretchy Bungee cords.

Finally, remember when you are behind the wheel of a truck — whether a four-by-four or not — you shouldn't take guff off anyone. Remember you are 16-centimeters above others, you have bigger wheels, antennas — hopefully hooked to a CB to call other truck drivers for help — a rack maybe with a rifle, and dogs in the back for backup.

You'll never look back on a dark-lit road again.

Except to quickly change lanes. And then, only if you want to.

"Their relationship has gone the same route as the United States and Mexico's. Now, they disagree on EVERYTHING."

Astro-Graph Tells Future

July 12, 1984

Do not alter your mode of operation this coming year on a project that you've been nurturing along for some time. You are on the right track for a payoff.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Unfortunately, others may judge you only on your outward appearance today, so it's best that you be conscious of your attire and demeanor at all times. Major changes are in store for Cancer in the coming year. Send for your year ahead predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, Box 489, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Although no one is apt to grade the quality of your work today, perform your tasks as though they were. You won't take pride in a bad job.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be prudent in your financial expenditures today. Don't be drawn into expensive activities by friends who can afford what you can't.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) In your eagerness to please or impress others today, you must be careful not to do things that do not serve your best interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22) Generosity is one of your more admirable virtues, but try to keep it within bounds today. Don't give away things that you may need later.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22) In order to collect a long-standing obligation, it may be necessary for you to be firmer with this person than you have been in the past.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19) If you yield too easily to pressure from an associate today, you might end up making a decision that will benefit him or her, but not you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Try not to lay burdens on others today that you should be taking care of yourself. If they don't produce, you'll be in a tight spot.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Someone you may encounter socially today might not be all he or she appears to be on the surface. Look beneath the veneer of charm.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) It's imperative that you think for yourself today. If you permit others to make decisions for you, it could cause regrets.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You might feel a trifle lazy today, and this is fine if you don't have anything important to do. However, if you do, this could spell problems.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Do not get others involved in any financial flyers today. If you should lose, you could lose pals, as well as money.

Monster Fish Haunts Tahoe

TAHOE CITY, Calif. (UPI) — A monster 17-foot-long fish inhabits the chilly depths of Lake Tahoe, say two more people who claim to have seen it. One expert says it could be a prehistoric creature or a huge sturgeon.

The latest sighting was made last month by Patsy McKay and Diane Stavarakis, both Tahoe City residents, who said they spotted the creature while hiking on a trail above the lake.

Ms. McKay told the Sacramento Bee, in a story published Wednesday, she first thought the 17-foot-long fish was a boat.

"I grabbed Diane and said, 'Look, that boat's sinking!' Then it just kind of emerged like a submarine. It went in a circle and then submerged briefly and came back up again," she said. "It was definitely alive."

It's not the first time someone has reported seeing a huge fish.

Two Reno police officers, Kris Beebe and Jerry Jones, reported sighting an unusually large creature while water skiing at Lake Tahoe in June 1982.

"We saw it," Beebe said. "It wasn't threatening us. It was just gliding right past us. Was I scared? I believe I went into a state of shock."

What type of fish the four people saw remains a mystery.

John Roush, a 61-year-old retired Air Force colonel who wrote a book called "Successfully Fishing Lake Tahoe," says he believes the fish tale.

Roush, who interviewed the police officers, said it is possible the creature is a sturgeon.

"That's the most logical explanation I've got. But then, again, it doesn't quite suffice," he told the newspaper.

Roush said sturgeon are not known to inhabit Lake Tahoe, nestled in the Sierra Nevada.

He said it also was possible the creature is a prehistoric fish that has somehow survived for centuries in the 1,500-foot deep mountain lake.

"There's enough water in Lake Tahoe to fill the 10 largest reservoirs in the United States," Roush said. "There's a distinct possibility it could be some fish we've never even discovered. I don't discount any possibility with a body of water that big."

Wedding Takes Place on River

AUGUSTA, Maine (UPI) — In the midst of this year's "Great Kennebec River Whatever Race," among the floating statue of Paul Bunyan and the floating schoolbus, were a bride and groom.

Van Johnson and Rachel Pottle were married on one of the 300 colorful floats parading down the Kennebec River in the annual zany float competition Sunday.

As they stood on a fake 25-foot-long aircraft carrier, Justice of the Peace Charles Lebrun pronounced them man and wife as up to 1,500 spectators watched from shore and from such wacky floats as the floating statue of Paul Bunyan and the floating schoolbus.

"We decided to get married on this day and we didn't want to miss the race," said Johnson, 30, of Waterville.

His 27-year-old bride was dressed in formal bridal gown and he in a tuxedo as they tied the knot. A five-member band serenaded them.

Johnson said they wore swimsuits underneath just in case the float tipped over — but the only plunge they wound up taking was matrimonial.

"I've been performing weddings for 10 years and it's the first time I ever married anyone on a river," said Lebrun, a justice of the peace from Fairfield.

Commencing 6 feet North of the Southeast corner of Lot 3, Plat "A", WILKINS TRACT SUBDIVISION, said point being 2259.33 feet South and 33 feet West and 6 feet North of the Northeast corner of the Northwest Quarter of Section 3, Township 6 South, Range 2 East of the Salt Lake Base and Meridian; thence North 82°21' West 150 feet; thence South 82°21' West 150 feet to the point of beginning. The same being a part of Lots 2 and 3 of said WILKINS TRACT, as amended, 43 USC 2740 and 2912.

The lands are described as follows:

That certain regular parcel of land in Utah County, Utah, in the south half (S1/2) of Section 18 and north half (N1/2) of Section 19, Township 7 South, Range 3 East, Salt Lake Meridian, Utah, containing five and eight-tenths (5.8) acres, more or less and being more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at a point which lies South 120° West forty-five hundred forty-seven and five-tenths (45,475.5) feet along the section line from the north-west corner of said Section 18; thence North 69°30' East twenty-eight hundred twenty-four and six-tenths (28,246.6) feet; thence along the Utah-Ak-Smeador line the following courses: South 75° East four hundred sixty-two (462.0) feet; thence South 46°30' East five hundred twenty-eight (528.0) feet; thence South 02°30' East two hundred thirty-two (232.0) feet; thence South 45°47' East one hundred twenty-four and six-tenths (124.6) feet; thence North 86°30' West seven hundred nineteen and four-tenths (719.4) feet; thence South 7°00' West one hundred fourteen and four-tenths (141.4) feet; thence South (121.4) feet; thence South 20° West three hundred ninety-six (396.0) feet; thence South 03° East one hundred and eight-tenths (108.8) feet, more or less, to a point on the Easterly right-of-way line of Highway 1-15; thence North 31°52' West one thousand sixty-nine and four-tenths (1,069.4) feet, more or less, along the Easterly line of said Highway 1-15 to point of beginning.

The City of Provo has made application for the above described public lands under the provisions of the R&P Act in order to develop a twenty-seven hole municipal golf course and related facilities.

It has been determined that there are significant public recreational values on the land which could best be served by the disposal of these lands to the City of Provo. This classification is consistent with the intent of the regulations in 43 CFR 2410.1 and 2430.4(c).

Classification of these lands under the provisions of the above-cited Act segregates them from all forms of appropriation including the mining laws, but not the mineral leasing laws. Should the lands be leased or sold under the provisions of this classification, the United States shall reserve all minerals together with the right of mine and remove the same under applicable laws and regulations.

For a period of 30 days from the date of first publication of this classification, persons wishing to comment on or protest this initial classification may submit their comment or protest to the District Manager, Bureau of Land Management, 2370 South 2300 West, Salt Lake City, Utah 84119.

NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE

The following described property will be sold at public auction to the highest bidder without warranty as to title, possession or encumbrances, at the west front door of the City and County Building, University and Center Streets, Provo, Utah, on the 2nd day of August, 1984, at 12:00 noon, of said day:

Commencing 6 feet North of the Southeast corner of Lot 3, Plat "A", WILKINS TRACT SUBDIVISION, said point being 2259.33 feet South and 33 feet West and 6 feet North of the Northeast corner of the Northwest Quarter of Section 3, Township 6 South, Range 2 East of the Salt Lake Base and Meridian; thence North 82°21' West 150 feet; thence South 82°21' West 150 feet to the point of beginning. The same being a part of Lots 2 and 3 of said WILKINS TRACT, as amended, 43 USC 2740 and 2912.

The lands are described as follows:

Beginning at a point which lies South 120° West forty-five hundred forty-seven and five-tenths (45,475.5) feet along the section line from the north-west corner of said Section 18; thence North 69°30' East twenty-eight hundred twenty-four and six-tenths (28,246.6) feet; thence along the Utah-Ak-Smeador line the following courses: South 75° East four hundred sixty-two (462.0) feet; thence South 46°30' East five hundred twenty-eight (528.0) feet; thence South 02°30' East two hundred thirty-two (232.0) feet; thence South 45°47' East one hundred twenty-four and six-tenths (124.6) feet; thence North 86°30' West seven hundred nineteen and four-tenths (719.4) feet; thence South 7°00' West one hundred fourteen and four-tenths (141.4) feet; thence South (121.4) feet; thence South 20° West three hundred ninety-six (396.0) feet; thence South 03° East one hundred and eight-tenths (108.8) feet, more or less, to a point on the Easterly right-of-way line of Highway 1-15; thence North 31°52' West one thousand sixty-nine and four-tenths (1,069.4) feet, more or less, along the Easterly line of said Highway 1-15 to point of beginning.

The City of Provo has made application for the above described public lands under the provisions of the R&P Act in order to develop a twenty-seven hole municipal golf course and related facilities.

It has been determined that there are significant public recreational values on the land which could best be served by the disposal of these lands to the City of Provo. This classification is consistent with the intent of the regulations in 43 CFR 2410.1 and 2430.4(c).

Classification of these lands under the provisions of the above-cited Act segregates them from all forms of appropriation including the mining laws, but not the mineral leasing laws. Should the lands be leased or sold under the provisions of this classification, the United States shall reserve all minerals together with the right of mine and remove the same under applicable laws and regulations.

For a period of 30 days from the date of first publication of this classification, persons wishing to comment on or protest this initial classification may submit their comment or protest to the District Manager, Bureau of Land Management, 2370 South 2300 West, Salt Lake City, Utah 84119.

INITIAL (FINAL) CLASSIFICATION DECISION

The following described lands have been examined and found to be suitable for disposal by lease and/or sale for recreation and public purposes.

These lands are hereby classified for disposal by lease and/or sale for recreation and public purposes under the provisions of the Recreation and Public Purposes Act (R&PP), June 14, 1926 (44 Stat. 741), as amended, 43 USC 869 (et seq.), and the regulations thereunder (43 CFR 2740 and 2912).

The lands are described as follows:

That certain regular parcel of land in Utah County, Utah, in the south half (S1/2) of Section 18 and north half (N1/2) of Section 19, Township 7 South, Range 3 East, Salt Lake Meridian, Utah, containing five and eight-tenths (5.8) acres, more or less and being more particularly described as follows:

Beginning at a point which lies South 120° West forty-five hundred forty-seven and five-tenths (45,475.5) feet along the section line from the north-west corner of said Section 18; thence North 69°30' East twenty-eight hundred twenty-four and six-tenths (28,246.6) feet; thence along the Utah-Ak-Smeador line the following courses: South 75° East four hundred sixty-two (462.0) feet; thence South 46°30' East five hundred twenty-eight (528.0) feet; thence South 02°30' East two hundred thirty-two (232.0) feet; thence South 45°47' East one hundred twenty-four and six-tenths (124.6) feet; thence North 86°30' West seven hundred nineteen and four-tenths (719.4) feet; thence South 7°00' West one hundred fourteen and four-tenths (141.4) feet; thence South (121.4) feet; thence South 20° West three hundred ninety-six (396.0) feet; thence South 03° East one hundred and eight-tenths (108.8) feet, more or less, to a point on the Easterly right-of-way line of Highway 1-15; thence North 31°52' West one thousand sixty-nine and four-tenths (1,069.4) feet, more or less, along the Easterly line of said Highway 1-15 to point of beginning.

The City of Provo has made application for the above described public lands under the provisions of the R&P Act in order to develop a twenty-seven hole municipal golf course and related facilities.

It has been determined that there are significant public recreational values on the land which could best be served by the disposal of these lands to the City of Provo. This classification is consistent with the intent of the regulations in 43 CFR 2410.1 and 2430.4(c).

Doctor: Humor Best Medicine in Psychiatric Ward

SEATTLE (UPI) — Robin Faye-McNair has several prescriptions for her psychiatric patients at University Hospital — drawing cartoons, watching soap operas and wearing Halloween masks.

The occupational therapist firmly believes in the cliché that laughter is the best medicine, especially when it comes to healing emotional wounds.

"I think humor helps because you can look at different areas of your life without making it so serious," Ms. Faye-McNair said. "It allows people to relax a little bit and open up."

Ms. Faye-McNair, who is an amateur cartoonist, encourages her patients to express their feelings by drawing cartoons, which she says makes it easier for them to discuss and cope with their problems.

"Sometimes it's kind of hard to express emotions and things that people keep hidden," she said, adding that patients who can sketch their feelings in cartoon form "don't feel as threatened."

For patients who have difficulties with interpersonal relationships, Ms. Faye-McNair turns to episodes of the daytime soap opera "One Life to Live." After patients watch a show, they discuss the characters and how they manipulate one another.

"Soap operas are ... so extreme it borders on humor," Ms. Faye-McNair said. "They help patients see they're acting out a role. It allows them to see options or other ways of behavior."

She also has a collection of Halloween-type facial masks, with expressions ranging from sad to angry to happy, and encourages patients to wear a face that depicts their mood that day.

"When you put on a mask, it really puts you much more in touch with your physical body," Ms. Faye-McNair said.

Patients who benefit from her special brand of therapy are suffering from a range of mental problems, including anorexia, depression or low self-esteem. Since each patient has specific needs, Ms. Faye-McNair admits approaching problems from the bright side doesn't always work — at least not right away.

"I sort of see myself as planting some seeds. If it's done in a way that gives people the opportunity (to be humorous), but doesn't force them, they may take up on it later," she said.

One patient who blossomed under Ms. Faye-McNair's approach was DeeDee Murry, 23, who entered the program in October 1983 suffering from anorexia nervosa.

"When I first came I wasn't very receptive," Ms. Murry said. "I had a lot of trouble in showing emotions. The humor group was very good for me."

Ms. Faye-McNair proudly shows off a cartoon that Ms. Murry drew to express her feelings about her five-year battle with anorexia, an eating disorder in which patients starve themselves to assert control over one aspect of an otherwise uncontrolled life.

In the expertly drawn cartoon strip, Ms. Murry is arguing with a devil, representing anorexia, about her need to consume a dietary supplement prescribed by the hospital.

After 14 weeks of treatment, Ms. Murry left the hospital early this year and now returns once a week as an outpatient. But she believes she is well along the road to recovery, and attributes much of her progress to the humorous approach.

"I'm using humor at home now," said Ms. Murry, who lives with her parents in Chehalis, Wash. "We're talking things out that we never did before."

Looking at things with a smile comes naturally to Ms. Faye-McNair.

"Humor has always been a big coping mechanism in my family," she said.

Boy's Lucky Number's 7

AGAWAM, Mass. (UPI) — There's no doubt about it, Ricky Locke's lucky number is seven.

The Agawam youth — born on the seventh day of the seventh month in 1977 at 7:27 a.m., weighing 7 pounds, 7 ounces — celebrated his 7th birthday Saturday, which just happened to be July 7.

"I'm not sure if he leads a charmed life, but he certainly is a bright little boy," said Joanne Locke during her son's birthday party.

"He's been pretty lucky," said Frank Locke, his father. "When he was 3 he had spinal meningitis but he beat it out and he's been growing like a weed ever since."

For his birthday, Ricky's parents bought him a cake shaped like — what else — a seven.

"It is my lucky number. Sometimes when I have a test or I'm in a race I just think of the number seven and then I get the answer or I win the race," said Ricky.

Consumer Groups Blast Used Car Rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Critics of the Federal Trade Commission's used-car rule say the measure leaves open a door that lets dealers knowingly stick buyers with lemons.

A divided FTC Tuesday tentatively approved the staff-recommended rule that would drop an earlier proposal that dealers be required to post known defects on window stickers.

Instead, dealers would be required to give consumers more information about who must pay for repairs and urges buyers to seek independent inspections before purchase.

"This rule, without the known defects provision, is little more than a consumer education campaign masquerading as significant industry-wide regulation," complained Commissioner Patricia Bailey.

Ms. Bailey and Commissioner Michael Pertschuk, appointees of President Carter and supporters of the known-defect provision that was opposed by the industry and backed by consumer groups, voted against the revised measure.

FTC Chairman James Miller, Commissioners Terry Calvani and George Douglas, appointees of President Reagan, voted in favor of the modified rule.

Miller said he agreed with his staff that the known-defect provision would be difficult to enforce, create confusion and possibly give consumers a false sense of security.

"I am convinced the rule recommended by the staff will be fair and effective," the chairman said.

About two hours before the vote, Congress Watch, one of several consumer groups that favored the known-defects provision, set up a bogus used-car lot in front of the FTC headquarters and denounced the staff's recommendation.

"This is frigid, hard-right, anti-consumer ideology," said Jay Angoff, a Consumer Watch staff attorney.

Angoff stood between a pair of late-model cars and in front of a banner that read, "Big Jim's and Honest Ron's used car lot" — referring to FTC Chairman Miller and Reagan.

A final FTC vote on the rule is expected within three months after the commission's staff submits a required "statement of basis and purpose." The commission will then set an effective date, probably within a year.

The rule would require the following information on a window sticker:

—A statement of the terms of any warranty offered.

—A prominent statement of whether the dealer is selling the car on an "as is" basis and, if so, that the consumer must pay for any repairs needed after buying the car.

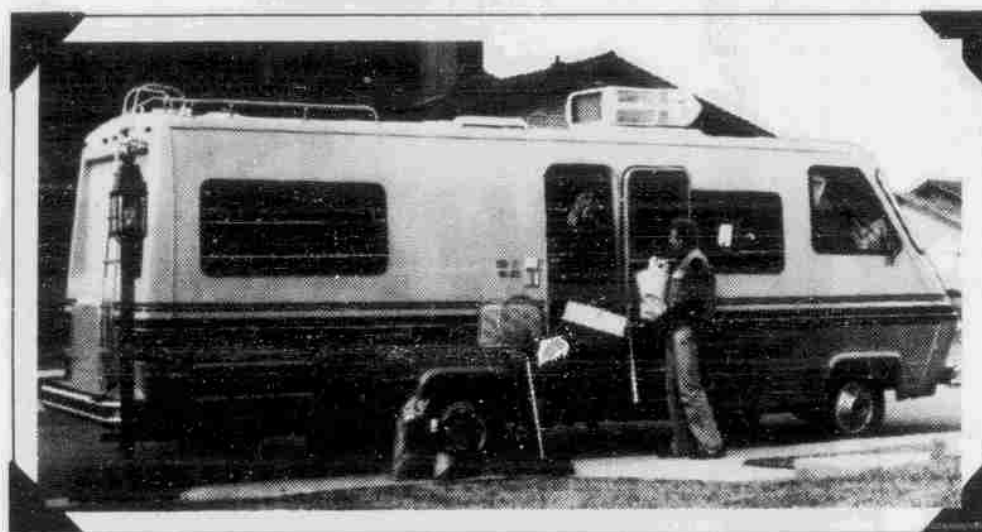

—A suggestion that the consumer ask for an independent inspection of the car.

—A warning that spoken promises are difficult to enforce coupled with a suggestion to get all promises in writing.
